

RECREATION SCHOOL TO OPEN AT EMORY

Training Institute Gets Under Way Today; Three Courses Offered.

The recreation training institute for volunteer and professional recreation workers will open at 9 o'clock this morning at Emory University in Winship Hall. Three courses will be offered by staff members of the National Recreation Association. Dr. Reynold E. Carlson will give a course in nature activities and also will serve as institute director. Miss Ethel Bowers will present a course in social recreation, and Frank A. Staples will teach a course in arts and crafts. The institute is being sponsored by the city park department and the Atlanta Social Planning council and was underwritten by more than 15 civic organizations. The courses will continue through July 7. Similar courses for negroes will be held at the School of Social Work, Atlanta University.

COUNT THE EXTRA SMOKES IN CAMELS

By burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—CAMELS give smokers the equivalent of

5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK

TODAY'S big news in cigarettes means real smoking pleasure and more of it for SMOKERS! Read the results of scientific laboratory tests on 16 of the largest-selling brands:

1 CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.

2 CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average for the other brands. Camels smoke cooler! Cooler tobacco, delicate in taste and fragrance. That's smoking pleasure at its best. Camels add bonus. America likes a shrewd buy...America favors Camels!

HEAVY DOWNPOUR OF RAIN DROWNS WOMAN SWIMMER

Heavy downpour of rain at noon yesterday caused the drowning of Gladys Houseworth, young negro woman, of School street, Decatur, Atlanta police reported.

Officers said the woman had gone in swimming in the storm sewer at the edge of Piedmont park and was swept away by the swift stream, suddenly swollen by the rain. They said a negro child, Lillian May Jones, told them the young woman drowned. The body had not been recovered late yesterday. Officers searched along the sewer banks for a number of miles.

STATE CROPS HIT BY PLANT DISEASE

Pathologist Says Half of Potatoes and Tomatoes Will Be Lost.

Approximately half of Georgia's potato and tomato crops will be lost from various plant diseases, Dr. Julian H. Miller, plant pathologist, reported yesterday to Chancellor S. V. Sanford of the University system.

Head of the department of plant pathology and plant breeding at the University of Georgia, Miller said vegetable growing was no longer profitable "with outworn and antiquated methods" but required the careful application of the best science can offer.

"Years ago," he continued, "many Georgians saved their own seed or plant parts for propagation and grew successful crops year after year. There were cabbages and Irish potatoes in isolated mountain valleys up until very recent times that reached maturity with practically no diseases."

"Now, this has all changed. In buying tomato, cabbage, sweet potato and other plants, as well as bringing in new seeds, we have brought along all the diseases of most every section of this country and many from Europe."

Miller emphasized the necessity of exact science in dealing with plant disease problems saying that because of the variability of causes, varieties and local conditions "no simple generalities" can be laid down for control methods.

WORLD FAIR TRAIN LEAVES HERE TODAY

400 To Be Aboard Georgia's Special, Including Rivers.

Georgia's special train to the New York World's Fair—with a capacity load of approximately 400 on board—will leave Terminal station at 2 o'clock (central time) this afternoon. Passengers include Governor Rivers and his party, and all along the route, the special will be greeted by mayors, senators, congressmen, civic club officials and business leaders.

Stops Listed.
Stops will be made at Athens, Elberton, Greenwood, S. C., Richmond, Va., Washington and Baltimore, where varied welcoming festivities have been planned.

The train is due to arrive in New York at 5:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Wednesday will be official "Georgia Day" at the fair, and a round of special entertainments will feature the program.

Broadcasts Stated.
Two NBC broadcasts this week will honor Georgia. They are Tommy Dorsey at 7:30 P. M. Wednesday, and the Cities Service program at 9 P. M. Friday.

Mrs. Rivers, wife of the governor, will fly from Atlanta to New York to join the Georgia party, following commencement exercises Tuesday at the University of Georgia, when Jerry Rivers, daughter of Governor and Mrs. Rivers, will be graduated.

GROCCERS' BARBECUE ATTENDED BY 1,000

Event Held Preliminary To Opening of Annual Convention Today.

Stale beef and Brunswick stew stole the show yesterday as more than 1,000 persons attended a barbecue for members of the Georgia Retail Food Dealers' Association and their families at Lake Moore, the Wiley Moore place on Roswell road.

Barbecue, prepared by the veteran cook, "Uncle" Lon Burdette, was served from 4 o'clock to 6 o'clock in an informal social event prior to opening of the association's 19th annual convention this morning in the Biltmore hotel.

Open house also was held at the hotel as a prelude to the convention. A brief shower late yesterday afternoon sent many of the guests scurrying for shelter at the Moore place, but in no way interfered with the success of the party.

Arrangements yesterday were in charge of the convention committee, headed by M. Blank, of Atlanta, vice president of the association and chairman of the committee. Others on the committee were Miss Audrey S. Hargett, Miss Lena Kuniansky and S. A. Camp.

The convention will continue through Wednesday. There are more than 10,000 retail grocers in Georgia.

OSTEOPATH PARLEY TO DRAW GEORGIANS

Three Atlantans To Attend Convention in Dallas.

Three Atlantans will attend the 43rd annual convention of the American Osteopathic Association in Dallas, Texas, June 26-30, it was announced yesterday. They are Drs. Matt Henderson, Hoyt B. Trimble and Kenneth H. Wiley.

Other Georgians who will speak or otherwise participate in the convention are Dr. Frank F. Jones, of Macon; Dr. D. C. Forehand, of Albany; Dr. Henry D. Webb, of Columbus; Dr. M. Lillian Bell, of LaGrange, and Dr. R. E. Andrews, of Rome.

KING IS SUSPENDED

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—The National Maritime Union announced today it had suspended for 99 years Jerome King, national secretary-treasurer, for "disruption and sabotage" in not carrying out his duties. The membership ship committee tried King on 14 counts, the union said, convicting him on seven, dividing on six and acquitting him on one.

Life of Warden Saved by Escape To Warn F. D. R. on Neutrality

CONGRESS Foes of Neutrality To Warn F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Senate opponents of neutrality law revision claimed today to have the support of at least 24 senators and said they would serve notice on the administration that if it insisted on repeal of the arms embargo there would be a fight certain to prolong the session at least until mid-August.

A member of the group said that word would be carried to President Roosevelt early this week by a senator who thus far has taken no active part in the neutrality controversy. The chief executive is due to return tomorrow night from his trip to Hyde Park and West Point, N. Y.

There were indications, meantime, that the administration was conducting its own private check of senate sentiment on the proposal of Secretary of State Hull that the arms embargo be discarded in favor of a system of presidential control of wartime shipping.

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the senate democratic chief, said, however, that he thought congressional leaders would have little more information to give the president Tuesday about prospective adjournment date than last week, when they were understood to have told him in effect that all legislation except neutrality could be cleaned up by July 15.

Reynolds Rushes Immigration Bill

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Senator Reynolds threatened today to try to force his bill into law by a vote on the floor of the senate. He said he would provide for deportation of undesirable and criminal aliens to a vote in the senate unless the senate immigration committee reports his or similar legislation.

Reynolds said "the people want immigration stopped" and "approve wholeheartedly of my several bills."

"If the senate immigration committee does not report out either my bills or the proposed omnibus bill containing the main points of all five bills," Reynolds said, "I shall move to bring them up for a vote on the floor of the senate."

Reynolds said he would introduce a bill to authorize the additional 1,200 planes if he deemed it advisable, it was explained.

Would Cut Down New Warplanes

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Informed legislators said today that a house appropriations subcommittee had agreed to recommend that the proposed expansion of the army air corps be limited to about 4,300 planes instead of the 5,500 proposed by President Roosevelt.

The subcommittee so worded its proposal, however, that the chief executive would have discretionary power to authorize the additional 1,200 planes if he deemed it advisable, it was explained.

Sweeping Reforms In Relief Urged

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—The conclusion is that federal relief costs have increased steadily in spite of reduced relief rolls, the National Economy League called today for "sweeping reforms" of the relief system.

In a statement, the league said: "The conclusion is that federal relief costs have increased steadily in spite of reduced relief rolls, the National Economy League called today for 'sweeping reforms' of the relief system."

Hot Dogs Now 'By Appointment'

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—The social climb of the hot dog was seized upon immediately today by waggish vendors of that item in its traditional home.

While the King and Queen of England were having their first picnic with mustards—as picnic guests of President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, Coney Island hot dog merchants ran up signs saying: "By special appointment to His Majesty the King."

MARRIAGES Warden Lawes To Press Agent

OSHSING, N. Y., June 11.—(AP)—Lewis E. Lawes, 55, warden of Sing Sing for 19 years, tonight announced his marriage on April 19 in Arlington, Va., to Miss Elise Chisholm, 35, of Oshsing.

Lawes said he had intended keeping his wedding secret until after the marriage of his daughter, Kathleen, on June 27 to Charles Miller of St. Louis, Mo., but that recurring rumors of his marriage forced an earlier announcement.

Mrs. Lawes, the daughter of Mrs. Elise McGee Chisholm, of Summit, Miss., is a theatrical press agent. They intend to honeymoon in Europe in July.

DEATHS Captain Smuts At Age of 66

BOSTON, June 11.—(AP)—Captain John Smuts, 66, widower of May Yohe, who at one time owned the renowned but luckless Hope diamond, and brother of the famed British South African general, Jan C. Smuts, died suddenly today of a heart attack.

A veteran of the Boer and World Wars, Captain Smuts had lived in virtual obscurity since scattering the ashes of his active wife upon the Atlantic ocean last September 3 in accordance with her dying wish, made a few days earlier.

Albert Y. Ogilvie, Tasmanian Premier

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 11.—(AP)—Albert George Ogilvie, Labor premier of Tasmania, died of a heart attack today while playing golf at Warburton, Victoria. He was 48.

Ogilvie, son of a Scottish father and Irish mother, was born at Hobart, Tasmania, March 10, 1891. He was elected a member of parliament on a Labor ticket for the first time in 1919 and had held his seat continuously since.

CRIME 'He's Next' Wife Of Baker Told

MOORHEAD, Minn., June 11.—(AP)—A telephone call from a mysterious source that ordered her to tell her husband "He's next" was received by Mrs. John Knutson, wife of a co-owner of the Northwest bakery here early today as authorities sought to clear up the bomb-killing of Milton Lee, 28, son of the other partner in the bakery.

Mrs. Knutson reported to authorities that the unidentified caller first asked for her husband, and when told he was not at home, ordered her to "Tell your husband he's next." The caller then hung up and efforts to trace the call were fruitless.

Escape Saves Warden's Life

BUENA VISTA, Col., June 11.—(AP)—Five reformatory inmates kidnapped Warden Walter H. Johnson today, freed him 15 minutes later and escaped, vowing they would never be taken alive.

Two miles from the reformatory the five stopped a guard's car they had stolen and said they were going to kill the warden. He related that as Needham Ferguson, 23, of Denver, leveled a .30-30 rifle at his chest, another of the group, James Williams, 17, of Lawton, Okla., stepped in front of the gun and protested, "He's been square with me."

They then freed the warden and drove toward Colorado Springs. All were serving relatively short terms for burglary and larceny. The break occurred while Warden Johnson was showing visitors

AVIATION Public Can Start Atlantic Hops Soon

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—The public can begin buying air passages to Europe June 28. Pan-American Airways announced today the world's first passenger service over the Atlantic will be started then.

Just who will be carried on the first flight, out of the hundreds who have applied for tickets, were not specified. The cost will be $375 one way and $675 for a round-trip. The one-way fare compares with $316 for a first-class ticket on the liners Queen Mary and Normandie.

By the North American Newspaper Alliance.
WASHINGTON, June 11.—"The building of aircraft that are safer than the men who fly them is increasing so rapidly that, within the next five to 10 years, we will have planes that take off automatically, fly at a chosen level entirely by instrument control, and land themselves on a radio beam. The human pilots then will do nothing but sit in their cockpits and watch with arms folded while the machine operates itself. When we have reached that stage, flying will be almost the safest form of transportation."

This statement was made by Major R. E. "Shorty" Schroeder, vice president in charge of safety for United Airlines, the only man in American aviation whose sole job is to think up ways and means to make airline operation as nearly foolproof as possible.

"Up till 1934," Major Schroeder continued, "it was a case of man against the machine. We still didn't have a great deal of technical perfection in our designing and manufacturing. Since 1934, covered in excavations just completed by Nelson Glueck, director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, Yale University announced today.

Solomon is believed to have constructed Ezion-Geber in the 10th century before Christ with the aid of thousands of laborers who probably were for the most part slaves. The place was fortified with a huge wall which at the top measured from seven and one-half to nine feet through and at the base set two to three feet beneath the ground, up to 12 feet through.

"There was, so far as we know, only one man who possessed the strength center, which was capable of initiating and carrying out the construction of a highly complex and specialized site, such as the factory town of Ezion-Geber in its first and greatest period," said the report of Director Glueck. "He was King Solomon."

Weary Pilots Reach Candler Field, Completing Annual State Air Tour

Mass Flight Termed One of Most Successful in Amateur Aviation Annals; Jenkins and Corps of Assistants Praised.

By CARY (Corrigan) WILMER.

A few scattered segments of what started out Thursday morning as Georgia's fourth annual all-state air tour returned to Candler field yesterday afternoon, weary and worn after three delightfully strenuous days, unanimous in terming this year's program as "the best."

There was nothing but praise for W. K. "Generalissimo" Jenkins and his able corps of assistants, whose careful advance preparations made possible one of the most completely successful mass flights in amateur aviation annals.

Those particularly singled out for compliments included Bill Owens, the Generalissimo's executive assistant; Major Wiley Wright, unquestionably one of the busiest men on the entire trip; Ralph C. Lockwood, who ran the major a very close second; Winship Nunnally, host at the elaborate party at Sea Island; W. J. "Brother Elk" Stoddard, designated, for some undisclosed reason, as a member of the social committee, and Dr. Fraser L. Adams Jr., vice president in charge of the contest department.

And speaking of contests, they were held at the Malcolm McKinnon airport, St. Simons, Saturday afternoon. The judges, however, were just slightly tardy in figuring out just what had happened and who won what. Here are the results:

Novelty race, Wally Schanz, of Atlanta, first, and Ed Horton, of Macon, second; Class 1 spot landing, F. A. Buchman, of Atlanta, and Walter Boshers, of Augusta; Class 2 spot landing, "Brother Elk" Stoddard, of Atlanta; 40-horsepower race, Charles Howard, of Augusta, and Charles Walker, of Atlanta; 50-horsepower race, Ed Horton, of Macon, and Loyd Neuburn, of Macon; bomb dropping,

Charles Walker, of Atlanta, and Tom Boozer, of Augusta. The start of yesterday's flight was somewhat delayed for one reason and another but most of the participating planes managed to make it to Macon for lunch, some of them stopping at McRae en route. After the feed contributed by the Macon Aero Club it was homeward bound by way of Griffin.

Several of the boys found Sea Island so thoroughly enjoyable they just couldn't tear themselves away with the rest of the gang. As a matter of fact no time has yet been set for their departure.

OFFICIAL DEFENDS STREET CAR FARES

Inant factor in this particular instance is the general business improvement. Business activity has picked up and the street railway has gotten some part of the benefit of this, after many long, lean years in which it has been a desperate struggle to keep the street railway service alive at all. And, of course, even that small benefit may be snatched away from us if the new problem of unregulated jitney-cabs is permitted to remain unsolved.

"I am glad Mr. Wilhoit mentioned the popular 'Shoppers' Special' buses and the various fare decreases of recent years. These voluntary decreases, along with the new trackless trolleys, new buses and many other improvements we have made in spite of the business depression, are the best proof that we are awake to the need for a steadily improving transportation service at the lowest possible price. We know quite well that reduced fares stimulate riding, we have already made a number of fare reductions voluntarily, and we hope to make others as they become practical in the long-range improvement program on which we are working. But with all of the study we have given to this question, we have not yet been able to figure out how to make a general fare reduction at this time without bankrupting the street railway business."

Says Fare Low. "We can't get around the fact that a high percentage of all the rides on the Atlanta system are from seven to ten miles long. Obviously, no proper comparison can be made between Atlanta and the smaller cities where the rides are much shorter. Most of our patrons are getting their transportation for slightly over one cent a

SULLIVAN PRAISES TIRE SAFETY WEEK

Declares Crusades Would Not Be Necessary If Drivers Saw Wrecks.

Safety crusades would not be necessary if every Georgia motorist could arrive on the scene of a fatal automobile accident a moment after it happened, Lon Sullivan, deputy commissioner of the State Department of Public Safety, said yesterday in lauding the current Atlanta Tire Safety Week.

"It is encouraging to learn of the interest being manifested in the crusade to stop killings and injuries on our streets and highways and especially of the interest now being taken in Tire Safety Week."

"We find in the records of fatalities throughout Georgia that hundreds of persons are injured—receiving fractured skulls, broken backs, internal hemorrhages, fractured vertebrae and other horrible mutilations as a result of slippery, worn-out tires."

"In this day of powerful automobiles and fast-moving traffic, a slight slip of a tire on a slippery pavement, or the puncture of a tire that is worn out, can mean death or destruction."

"If the automobile owners of Georgia could see the gruesome spectacles found at these fatal accidents—the blood, bones, human flesh, steel and glass all ground together, and if they could see the tragedy and hear the pitiful cries of injured victims, it would not be necessary to call attention to anything so commendable and fine as a week set aside and dedicated to something that will prevent these accidents."

"I want to congratulate all who are waging the Tire Safety Week and repeat again that nothing can be accomplished that will save human life as it should be done in Georgia without the whole-hearted co-operation and tireless efforts of the newspapers of our state."

The fare is already exceedingly low in terms of what it buys. "We can't get around the fact that the almost universal ownership of private automobiles has created a condition where the street railway's principal job is handling the rush-hour travel. During the other hours of the day and night, the street cars and buses run up and down the street almost empty. But service during the non-rush hours is a public necessity, and the fare must be high enough to support it."

"We can't get around the fact that expenses have made a big increase during the period mentioned by Mr. Wilhoit when revenues have made a big decrease. Just one example out of many is the fact that our street railway men are now getting 70 cents an hour, but were getting only 59 cents an hour back in 1927. Is Mr. Wilhoit suggesting that we reduce wages to 1927 levels, or is he willing to consider this question on the basis of conditions as they exist today?"

Suggestion "Unjust." "All of these things and many more were explained to Mr. Wilhoit and the other members of the Georgia Public Service Commission as recently as last September. The commission made a thorough investigation of the street car fare question and the evidence against a general reduction was so overwhelming no reduction was ordered. There is not the least doubt in my mind that the members of the commission were convinced that a general fare reduction would be contrary to the public's interest. Therefore, the suggestion that we should, so soon afterward, be subjected to the expense and trouble of preparing another rate case seems rather unjust."

"One of the ancient rights of American citizens is protection against double jeopardy; they can't be tried twice for the same offense. Must we believe that this inherently fair principle is not going to be applied to us? Must we believe that whenever the commission is unable to find us 'guilty' of some charge, we can expect to be hauled up again and again until some way to 'convict' us can be found? I cannot believe that the commission or the people of Atlanta are in favor of any such practice."

COMMISSION WILL TAKE INVENTORY OF UTILITIES

Chairman Walter R. McDonough of the Georgia Public Service Commission announced yesterday an inventory of all electric utility properties in Georgia would begin July 1.

The project, to be undertaken with WPA labor, is estimated to involve a cost of $295,335. All funds are to be provided by WPA.

McDonough said the survey would include field study of property owned by the electric utilities, such as steam, hydro and all distribution systems and general plant units.

The chairman explained the information obtained "will be of great value to the commission" in its task of determining future power rates.

The inventory project is to cover two of the three major power systems serving Georgia—the Georgia Power Company, which services approximately 85 per cent of the state, and the Savannah Electric and Power Company. Survey of the Georgia Power and Light Company recently was completed by engineers of the Public Service Commission.

The engineering staff of the commission is to direct all work contemplated in the WPA survey. McDonough said, with field workers recruited from certified WPA rolls.

18 ESCAPE INJURY IN PLANE ACCIDENT

Eastern Air Line Ship Slightly Damaged in Landing at Candler Field.

Eighteen passengers escaped injury yesterday afternoon when an Eastern Air Line plane was slightly damaged in landing at Candler field en route from San Antonio to Newark, N. J.

Attaches of the dispatcher's office said the left landing gear folded up as the plane was gliding along the runway. It tilted, damaged the left wing and propeller but none was hurt. Gilbert Waller was the pilot. Officials said the plane was traveling only about 20 miles per hour.

Passengers were guests of the line at a downtown hotel while a relief ship was flown from Newark last night to complete the trip.

or creed are in violation of the most elementary laws of Christian charity.

"By a coincidence, the very epistle of this Sunday which is read in all Catholic churches throughout the world today contains these words of St. John: 'Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer.'"

"Strong language this but it comes from the great apostle of charity."

"We are not dismayed when men rise up against the church. Our Lord told us all about it beforehand. He even spoke of well-meaning persons who would be against the church and who even thought they would be doing a service to God thereby."

"They have persecuted me. They will also persecute you. The disciple is not above his Master."

"I want you to be reminded that this country was discovered by Catholics. All the great discoverers and explorers were Catholic. The first religious service on Georgia soil was a Catholic service. The work of the Catholic explorers is manifest in the Catholic names given to the rivers they discovered and the cities they founded. In some parts of this country a railroad conductor who announces the stations is compelled to practically recite the Catholic litany of the saints.

"I wish to state that if any charges are made against the church, all statements will have to be proved uncontrovertibly. Those who make accusations must prove them or forever hold their peace."

"I do not want to close these remarks without a pleasant note. I rejoice in the fact that the better class of people in Georgia will have nothing to do with any movement that would set one group against another in this state. Catholics have defended this country in every war and every crisis. In the last war, more Catholic boys were in the army and navy than boys of any other denomination.

"I express the hope that these reports which have reached me to the effect that there is an anti-Catholic movement on foot in this state are without foundation."

A British scholar, Professor S. H. Hooke, says that in 30 years archaeology "has reconstructed the stage" on which the drama of Hebrew history was played.

SMOOTH TIRES

Blow-out!! A sickening swerve, car out of control—crash . . . and mangled bodies lying on the road! What a terrible price to pay for a smooth tread! Recent studies show that millions of motorists are driving on old, smooth tires that menace public safety. These tires have delivered their money's worth in mileage. They have outlived their usefulness. They should be discarded at once! Are your tires safe? Have you examined them in the past thirty days? If not, look at them today! Then, if you have even one smooth tire on your car, get it off before it has a chance to harm you or your family. The mileage-value of the average smooth tire is only about 98¢. Don't tempt fate! Don't risk human life! Replace every smooth tire now with a safe, new, thick-treaded tire during this Summer Tire Safety Campaign. See any dealer listed below!

Flood Control

According to reliable tabulation, floods in the United States in the period 1927 to 1937, inclusive caused property damage of $1,374,000,000 and loss of 1,798 lives. Much of this loss occurred in the Ohio valley during the floods of 1936-37 when 900 people met death and $780,000,000 worth of property was destroyed.

Loss of life and property from flood waters, however, has not been limited to any one locality. It has occurred in all parts of the country and, most frequently, at the very places where previous floods warned of future peril. Last winter it happened again along the Ohio. Thirty thousand people—10,000 families—were driven out of their homes. Twenty American citizens lost their lives.

In speaking on the subject President Roosevelt recently called upon the people "to co-operate and aid in the work of flood prevention and give serious consideration to such measures as may prevent disastrous floods and aid in the preservation of our national resources."

Without doubt the vast majority of the American people will approve of this plea for flood control. But the feeling persists, in view of the tremendous annual loss of life and property, that too much attention has been given in the past to the natural resources end of the business, such as power and other developments, at the expense of actual flood control.

During the 1937 Ohio valley disaster a practical man, chief of engineers of the United States army, Major General E. M. Markham, stated "I can take one and a half of the property losses in this valley in the last two years and, without peradventure, protect it against flood for all time." But, at the next session, congress appropriated only $125,000,000 to the project. This was scarcely in excess of the losses resulting from the flood which followed in January, 1939.

If General Markham's estimate applies to the Ohio valley it doubtless applies to other parts of the country. The condition, so far as recurring floods are concerned, is exactly similar in every flood-imperiled section of the nation. Yet only $119,000,000 was actually invested in flood control throughout the entire nation during the two fiscal years ending June 30, 1937 and 1938.

A great deal more could and should be done. It is nothing less than an economic absurdity for a nation as rich as the United States to permit thousands upon thousands of its good citizens to be driven from their homes every year, many of their lives snuffed out and property losses running into hundreds of millions of dollars. The property loss within a few years, as General Markham pointed out, would more than pay for removing the danger of flood for all time.

A Healthy Contribution

The popular political catch-phrase "the chain stores send all the money out of the state" has never had any real basis in fact. They pay their share of rents, taxes, wages, repair and equipment bills, service charges, such as lighting and heating, and purchase local food and factory products to the extent of availability.

According to a recent survey by the Business Property Owners Association of America, $117,300,000 is the annual contribution of the chain stores to the economic welfare of the state of Georgia. The spending of this huge amount gives jobs to thousands of workers. It provides a market for Georgia products the year 'round. Approximately $72,000,000 is spent for products of farm and factory and $15,500,000 goes into wages.

It would seem, therefore, that the importance of the chain systems, particularly in agricultural states, cannot be overemphasized. The saving to the consumer, due to efficient distribution, is inestimable. The availability on the retail market of seasonal as well as other products at low prices due to quantitative purchasing is a convenience to which the buying public has become accustomed. The single unit storekeepers, in recognition of this, have also adopted similar progressive methods of buying and distributing through co-operative organizations.

The proposal to tax chain stores "out of business" by special levy is gradually losing its appeal. It is no longer regarded as good campaign material even by its former ardent advocates. It has been discovered that the people won't stand for it. It has been realized that the chain system of distributing the necessities of life, has proved its value in the nation's economy. It is here to stay. It is a healthy contribution to the welfare of the state.

4-H Club Work

The achievements of Georgia's 4-H Clubs during 1938 were remarkable. A total membership of 77,637 boys and girls from nearly 50,000 farm homes from one end of the state to the other participated in the work. Over 25,000 leader-training meetings were held. A net membership increase of 6,238 was recorded over the previous year.

One important phase of 4-H Club work is its community activities; improving school grounds, managing entertainments, conducting local fairs, bringing young people together in co-operative endeavor. Over 1,000 clubs in 84 counties engaged in this type of work. A statewide community amateur entertainment contest, with attractive prizes, is sponsored each year by the clubs. Permanent camps or club and community houses were established last year in 56 communities.

Boys' project work in cotton, corn, peanuts, potatoes and other Georgia products is almost too well known for comment. High yield per acre, the open door to successful farming anywhere, is the chief objective. Potatoes took the lead at a yield of $76 per acre.

The girls, too, as usual, did commendable work. Members canned over 1,000,000 quarts of fruits and vegetables. Garments made and renovated helped thousands of boys and girls in their personal appearance and comfort who otherwise would have continued in need of clothing.

Projects engaged in by both boys and girls included orcharding, poultry and livestock. These projects aroused the keenest kind of competition among the members and proved profitable as well.

The health work of 4-H Clubs is increasing to a gratifying extent each year. More club members did definite health work and took physical examinations in 1938 than ever before. This growing interest in physical welfare reached a climax when the Georgia boys' health champion was selected as one of the four healthiest 4-H Club boys in the nation at the annual club congress.

The year 1939, and each succeeding year, will show advancement and improvement in this excellent work. The boys and girls of Georgia are determined on this.

Japanese Money

The recent Japanese incident in the International Settlement at Amoy and the threat of a similar incident at Shanghai quickly brought the United States, Britain and France together in a united protest against the projected violation of treaty rights. One of the most noticeable effects of this action was the beneficial influence on Chinese money and the detrimental effect on the yen.

Japan's yen, in terms of the United States dollar, promptly slumped below the value of the Chinese dollar. This was a serious blow to the Japanese—outweighing in importance their many needless bombings of Chinese cities and some of their victims in the field.

Ever since the Japanese started on their latest adventure on the mainland of Asia they have been trying to persuade the stubborn Chinese that the yen was as good as China's dollar. But the Chinese, somehow, just won't believe it. Even in conquered territory, where the penalty is death for disobedience of Japanese orders, the Chinese openly give preference to their own money. The reason is obvious. Chinese money can be exchanged for western money. The yen cannot.

The descending yen has placed a heavy burden upon the thousands of pleasure-loving Japanese soldiers and civilians in Shanghai. These folk have been forced to curtail their pleasure. The yen doesn't buy as much fun as formerly. As a patriotic measure a thrift campaign, sponsored by the Japanese authorities, to cut down on entertainment, has been started.

With an artificially, albeit weakly, pegged yen in Japan proper and a sliding one in China, Japan's financiers are somewhat up against it. Another census has been ordered—not a population or unemployment census—but a thorough seeking out of hidden gold of all kinds, such as plate, rings, jewelry and antiques. Thus slowly, but surely, the Japanese "yen" for conquest is contracting in exact ratio to the shrinking purchasing power of their monetary yen.

Safe-breakers in the south got in and out of an insurance company's office before anyone stopped them with an interesting proposition affecting their future.

"Europe's horse traders may be over shortly concerning the debts," says a blunt publicist. Well, just so the trader brings along a horse.

In an age when the horse knew the way home, the drunk driver was a problem only to the immediate kin.

Editorial of the Day

F. D. R. HAS THE KEY
(From The Columbia State.)

President Roosevelt's unknown attitude concerning a third term places Mr. Hull, Mr. Farley and other loyal New Dealers with political ambition, in a hole. They may not go out and work for themselves if their political creator, the President, is seeking a third term; and, so long as they remain uninformed of his intentions and desires, they must be discreetly loyal to him. No member of the New Deal official family has the political strength, if the wish, to break with the President and go on to win. The President's blessing seems now essential for the nomination, and will be essential for victory in the election. A Democratic candidate, openly or subtly opposed by President Roosevelt, would be sunk.

"The situation gives whatever advantage there is to Mr. Roosevelt," writes Arthur Krock in the New York Times. "If the anti-New Deal Democrats concentrate openly on an aspirant, he cannot count on that White House support which is indispensable to election. And while Europe remains unsettled the administration strategists chant what Lincoln said about 'swapping horses.'"

The State's guess, as given now and heretofore, is that President Roosevelt will maintain his silence on the third-term matter in order to maintain his political influence within his party. He holds the key that might lock the door in any candidate's face, or unlock it. What his intentions are, no one seems to know, but the strategy he has adopted is shrewd whether he seeks a third term, or merely seeks to force the nomination of a liberal candidate.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NEUTRALITY PROBLEM. WASHINGTON, June 11.—One of the things the King of England will be most interested to watch is whether the President will abide by his commands for revision of the neutrality act at this session. The commands were given to the glum congressional leaders at a meeting early last week. If the President insists on seeing them carried out, congress is likely to remain in Washington until doomsday, and will probably not adjourn even when the last trumpet sounds.

The President's insistence on immediate neutrality revision arises, of course, from the conviction, which he shares with most officials of the State Department, that the chances of war in Europe will be immeasurably reduced once the neutrality act's arms embargo section is repealed. The theory is that, if arms, and particularly airplanes, can be freely bought in the United States by the Democratic powers, the Fascist aggressors will be much more reluctant to carry the next crisis to the dreaded climax. As the Berlin predictions of a peaceful summer have altered no one's belief that the next crisis is due in August after the Rumanian wheat harvest, prompt action is vitally desirable.

Unfortunately, however, the congressional leaders do not share the President's or the State Department's lively sense of the European situation's seriousness. All along they have hoped to defer the struggle over the neutrality act at least until next January. Accordingly, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley and the big dogs of the house were more than a little depressed by the President's orders. They objected so strenuously that, after the meeting with the President, it was arranged for them to foregather with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who threw all the weight of his great authority behind the President.

PRESIDENT IN COMMAND Even now the congressional leadership is understood to be only half-convinced. As this is written, no further meeting with the President has taken place, but it is understood that they have been promised one more opportunity to present their case for shutting up shop and going home early. Their pleas will have to be very persuasive.

The White House-State Department plan is to get the neutrality act safely revised in the more biddable house, and then to present the revisions, as a sort of fait accompli, to the senate. House action is already well under way. Simultaneously, the President has suddenly announced that, instead of going west, he will stay in Washington through the early summer. The need for his presence here was attributed to other causes, but it does not require much shrewdness to see that, if the neutrality problem is to be seriously tackled, he must be in the White House to lead the revisionist forces. And that reason for his change of plan is far more logical than those named.

"ANOTHER LEAGUE FIGHT" At present, it is impossible to foresee just how prolonged and how bitter the struggle will be, if the President does insist. It will almost certainly center in the senate. Senators Borah, Nye, Clark, Bone and several others have formed themselves into an anti-revisionist bloc and prepared a declaration of principles. Among themselves they talk hopefully of "another league fight," although wise old veteran Borah, who knows what the league fight really was, has a tendency to smile at these grandiosities. At any rate, they can be counted on for a vast amount of oratory. It was attempted to prepare for a filibuster, but the effort was blocked by Borah's simple conviction that, after adequate debate, proponents of a bill have a right to a vote. As yet, the others are reluctant to join a filibuster without Borah, but they may change their minds.

Repeal of the arms embargo will naturally be the great topic of debate. A few months ago the numerical strength against repeal would have been strong, but now the Gallup poll, showing a large majority of the people in favor of supplying the Democracies with arms, plus signs of the poll's correctness in direct communications from constituents, has changed the minds of many senators and representatives.

In the house committee on foreign affairs, discussion of neutrality has been pretty partisan, but important Republicans are expected to side with the President both in house and senate when the matter comes to a real issue. Moreover, it is thought that, for the first time in many moons, the President will have the help of Vice President John N. Garner, whose friends have described him as ready to put his shoulder to the revisionist wheel. Possibly, in the end, the President will decide against the long struggle for revision. But, if he does not, the sweltering congressmen and senators will at least have the consolation that a desperately pressing question is being decided when it ought to be decided, and not when decision is untimely and belated.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

I heard a woman singing
And how my heart was stirred—
I stood outside that window,
My eyes with tears were blurred.

At last my eyes grew clearer,
I looked within; 'd you know
The magic left my spirit
When I saw 'twas radio.

A Great Relaxation.

If you had been awake at the proper moment during the night which has just ended as you read this, you might have heard a sound like a great sigh, or the momentary sighing of a distant wind, coming from the north through the night.

That was the sigh of relief that came from the lips of every official, from the humblest soldier in the ranks or plain policeman, to the President of the United States, who had anything to do with the entertainment and protection of the visit. Especially Queen Elizabeth of Britain, while they were on American soil.

For the visit is over without untoward incident, their majesties are safely delivered, sound and unharmed, back to British soil. We have all been charmed by their personalities, we would like to prolong with them for a longer time. We regret the shortness of their visit, from the social viewpoint, but the responsibility was too great to last for more than four days.

Just suppose some crazy fool—and we have 'em, you know—in Washington or New York, had felt called upon to attempt something or other against the persons of their majesties? Of course, the British government and the British people would know it was no fault of this country. They would understand how it happened. For they have crazy fools in their population, too.

But this country, every decent man, woman or child in it, would have felt so badly, so humiliated, that it would have been a relief to have let it go.

With all reverence, let's say "Thank God," that no such horrible incident occurred to mar the royal visit to the United States.

Can't Be Too Careful.

There was, sort of sub rosa, some resentment at the extremes of precaution taken by some authorities during the visit. Especially the order in New York, that spectators along the route of the royal parade must not move their hands and that all windows on that same route must be closed. Berlin, even, took occasion to poke some sarcasm at a free democracy for such precautions.

But you can't blame the police, or the others who were charged with the safety of George and Elizabeth. It was too vitally important to stop short of every safeguard that could be devised.

In New York, where the above drastic orders were given, it must be remembered that there are some mighty peculiar individuals. If you've ever walked through Washington square on a Sunday or strolled around the Battery, you know this.

And all the police care in the world couldn't keep all the nuts away, at any time. And who could tell when a lifted arm might not have a sleeve gun with it? Or what surveillance could keep certain that any open window might not suddenly become a gun embrasure?

There have been assassinations in this country in the past. Witness McKinley, Lincoln and May or Cermak, of Chicago.

All sorts of people have found refuge on these shores. Some of them, a few at least, have been and are, fanatics. And no man can foretell what a fanatic will do, if given half a chance.

I, for one, don't blame the New York police for giving such drastic orders or for enforcing them. Any possible regulation that added one iota to the assurance that their majesties were at all times safe while on American soil was worth while.

Godspeed,
And Au Revoir.

So they've gone. We wish them Godspeed and happy and useful lives. And we'd like them to come again. Enjoyed the visit, glad to have you, wish you could stay longer, and so on.

But it was a strain. Don't you think, frankly, now that it's all over, that the American authorities did a mighty good job of protection, for two mighty important as well as mighty nice young people? Particularly in view of our lack of experience in this kind of thing. Even Scotland Yard could hardly find fault. Could they, Inspector, old fruit?

This Morning

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Be not wise in your own conceits."

Conceit, like stinginess with money, is more repulsive in some people than in others. A rich man who has made his money with his own hard work and who holds on to every penny for dear life—is excusable if unattractive, while a rich man who has inherited money and is stingy with it is about the most graceless of all God's creatures. Similarly a conceited man who is childish about it, or happy to be careless or humorous about it, is endurable, while one who hides his conceit with mature hypocrisies or carries it in pious dignity or expresses it in ruthless self-serving—is beyond the pale of liking.

The conceit that has most threatened the world is Prussian. As a people the Germans are not especially conceited, it seems to us, and even when they are, the result is not necessarily unattractive or threatening when it is Bavarian or Austrian German conceit. It is when it is Prussian German it is deadly. When Italians call themselves super-men, we all know that it is just Italian fervor. When Americans do it, we know it is just American enthusiasm. When Englishmen do it, it is more serious, but it is more of a never-setting sun and a sense of the importance of front. When Russians do it, it is largely a whistling in the dark. But when Prussians do it, we know they mean it in cold and calculating earnest and that they expect to do something about it.

"The Frenchman is conceited," wrote Tolstoy, "from supposing himself mentally and physically to be inordinately fascinating both to men and to women. An Englishman is conceited on the ground of being a citizen of the best-constituted nation in the world, and also because he is an Englishman all ways knows what is the correct thing to do, and knows that everything that he, as an Englishman, does do is indisputably the best thing. An Italian is conceited from being excitable and easily forgetting himself and other people. A Russian is conceited precisely because he knows nothing and cares to know nothing, since he does not believe it possible to believe anything fully . . ."

"A conceited German (Prussian) is the worst of them all, and the most hardened of all and the most repulsive of all; for he imagines that he possesses the truth in a science of his own invention, which is to him absolute truth."

Senator Claude Pepper complains in the senate that, in defiance of a ruling by the National Railroad Adjustment Board, the Pullman Company continues to lay off conductors and entrust their duties to porters. We don't know much about the adjustment board and its rulings but we have heard a lot of Pullmans lately and we know that whatever the law of the matter the public just simply doesn't like this business of having porters take the place of Pullman conductors. Particularly the traveling public. And we know that economy which antagonizes customers can be mighty poor economy.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

GEORGIA FOOD.

Raymond Kline entertained the Ten Club last Thursday afternoon, using Georgia products from beginning to end, even the honor guest, the famed Miss Mary Knight, a Georgian. The Robert E. Lee room of the Davidson-Paxton Company, decorated with Georgia scenes—exquisite silhouettes of typical Georgia industries, agriculture, fishing, golfing, etc., etc. A large map of the state indicated distinctive products from such localities as Athens, Calhoun, Carrollton, Gainesville, Grantville, Griffin, Hill City, LaGrange, West Point, Columbus, Macon, Augusta, Marietta, Rome, Savannah, Toccoa, Washington, Thomasville, Albany, Moultrie, Cordele, Valdosta, Waycross, Fitzgerald, Dublin, Newnan, Thomasville, Cartersville, Canton, Statesboro, Swainsboro, Warm Springs, Madison, Brunswick, Waynesboro, Commerce, Eatonton, Bremen, Lithonia, Covington, Elberton, Atlanta, and so on through the list of Georgia communities.

When we got to the table we found a bounteous spread of Georgia products, prepared under the supervision of Miss Kellow. Some of the items of the menu were watercress, tomatoes, cucumbers, cottage cheese, smothered chicken with dumplings and yellow gravy, baked green peas, buttered beets, new potatoes, lettuce and strawberry pie.

And the way that Georgia food was cooked and served made us gratefully aware of the wealth of our state. It was a revelation of what we have right here at home. You should have seen those platters of smothered chicken—just like your mother used to serve—and all the above mentioned items in old-fashioned Georgia style.

With the exception of such rare items as salt, coffee and tea, everything on the table was produced in Georgia, including the butter, sugar, etc., etc. And as we enjoyed the wonderful dinner, we kept looking at those pictures of the many, many places in Georgia and the products typical of these localities—peas, pears, dairy products, cotton, corn, tobacco, peppers, asparagus, syrup, livestock, fruits and on and on. A large bowl of gardenias graced the center of the table, with suggestions here and there of many other distinctive Georgia flowers. And to each guest Mr. Kline gave a badge with this inscription written across the map of the state, "I Am From Georgia."

We have so much for which to be thankful—so much with which to be content—so much to offer the rest of the world—that one wonders that we should ever fall in with the snoopers who seek to make Georgia out a place of poverty and distress.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THIRD TERM COMMENTS It being cooler in the office than out, I stayed late, poring over what you may have heard.

There being so much talk of a third term, I blew the dust off them and searched for comment. There are three official state comments on the President's term, two by Andrew Jackson and one by Rutherford B. Hayes. I never cared so much for my Hayes and must admit to no great admiration for the man, but his statements are among the official state papers.

It was Thomas Jefferson, of course, who set the tradition against a third term. And not Washington, as many seem to believe. Washington did refuse a third term. He did it largely because he was abused and ill and tired of the whole business. Washington never believed in political parties. There was none when he took office. It was not until Thomas Jefferson, in Paris, began to write letters back home during the long, tedious framing of the constitution, and the longer and more arduous business of getting it accepted, that political parties began to form. Alexander Hamilton headed one and Jefferson the other. Hamilton sought a strongly centralized government. Jefferson believed in the state units, or in local government, as the best safeguard of civil rights and liberties. This clash of parties made Washington weary of the task.

Jefferson was asked to take a third term. Indeed, his friends had received almost enough pledges to assure him election. They had not sought them. There were others to be had for the asking. Jefferson refused. He issued a long statement, emphatically saying he believed a third term a bad idea. He believed it would, after a third term, be easy to ask for a fourth or a fifth.

It was Jefferson who set the pattern of tradition against a third term.

THE SQUIRE OF THE HERMITAGE One first finds a reference in the official papers and messages of the Presidents, in the papers of Andrew Jackson, "Old Hickory," the squire of The Hermitage and perhaps the greatest Democrat of them all unless Jefferson be his peer.

In his first annual message he was discussing the length of the President's term of office and the manner, then in effect, of choosing that President. He wished the President elected directly by the people. In his discussion he said:

"In connection with this amendment it would seem advisable to limit the service of the chief magistrate to a single term of either four or six years."

Continuing, he said, regarding the holding of any political office:

"There are, perhaps, few men who can for any length of time enjoy office and power without being more or less under the influence of feelings unfavorable to the faithful discharge of their public duties. Their integrity may be proof against improper considerations immediately addressed to themselves, but they are apt to acquire a habit of looking with indifference upon public interests and of tolerating conduct from which an unpracticed man would revolt."

In his sixth annual message one finds this sentence as he again asks that that office be placed in the direct control of the people. " . . . Could this be attained, and the terms of those offices be limited to a single period of either four or six years, I think our liberties would possess an additional safeguard."

So much for Old Hickory. "The Border Captain" and great Democrat. He wanted not two terms, but one, as being "an additional safeguard to our liberties."

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES Following Ulysses S. Grant, there came his choice, Rutherford B. Hayes.

In his inaugural address, he said: "The President of the United States of necessity owes his election to office to the suffrage and zealous labors of a political party, the members of which cherish with ardor and regard as of essential importance the principles of their party organization, but he should strive to be always mindful of the fact that he serves his party best who serves his country best."

"In furtherance of the reform we seek, and in other important respects a change of great importance, I recommend an amendment to the constitution prescribing a term of six years for the presidential office and forbidding a re-election."

Those are the official statements made by our past Presidents. There were those who made statements on the subject but not officially.

We now are informed that Woodrow Wilson wanted a third term and might have sought it had not illness come to him.

No one knows what Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt thinks about it, but certain of his more prominent camp followers who would be minus their jobs were he not to run, have said they believe he should.

The Gallup poll finds evidence that Mr. Roosevelt is popular with about 58 per cent of the voters; but also finds that a majority believe business would be improved by the election of a Republican. Quo vadis?

It Is Folly to Serve as a Train Conductor If You Are President Of the Road

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A German scientist who experiments with monkeys said a few years ago: "They are intensely curious about any new thing, but soon lose interest in it." He could have said as much about many another species, including our own.

It is this trait, more than anything else, that accounts for the overorganization by which Americans scatter their energies.

When the people of a community form any kind of organization, whether civic, social or religious, their first enthusiasm provides enough momentum to keep it going for a few months or years. And if new members are added at intervals, these give a new injection of zeal that delays the process of decay indefinitely.

But zeal is an emotion and emotions burn themselves out. If the organization doesn't die of neglect and disappear, the spirit of it dies and nothing remains but hollow form and ritual and listless boredom.

Once in a while some new zealot, filled with the old enthusiasm, has power to resurrect the order and give it new life; but the usual proceeding is to leave the parent organization undisturbed in its slumbers and attach a new organization to it.

A church, say, is organized for the purpose of saving sinners. In the course of time it loses interest in the job and quits trying. Then a few young people decide that something should be done, but instead of trying to revive the whole church, they form a junior club to save sinners. And when this club loses its enthusiasm and becomes useless, a few of its members start a reformed junior club to save sinners.

The job of reviving the parent organization always seems too big to attempt. The people in charge of it reject new ideas and new plans, and they refuse to start in and let somebody else manage things. Moreover, the new zealots, having developed bright new ideas, feel entitled to a new organization that they alone can control and direct.

In a free land, every enthusiast with a new idea, or an old one

Madridenos To Pay New Tax on Food

MADRID, June 11.—(AP)—Madridenos, facing the highest living costs of any city in Europe, will pay a new tax of 20 per cent on all purchases at cafes, bars and similar establishments, beginning next Thursday, to help pay Generalissimo Francisco Franco's soldiers and their families.

The tax has been in effect since the civil war began in 1936 in Spain as conquered by the Nationalists but will be applied this week to Madrid for the first time. It was made effective June 1 in Valencia.

Spanish Children's Adoption Attacked

MADRID, June 11.—(AP)—The newspaper ABC charged today that Spanish Republican refugees in the United States were pressing a campaign "inciting American citizens and Spanish residents there to adopt Spanish children and prevent their return to Spain."

The newspaper charged the alleged drive was "collective kidnapping" and called on Alexander W. Weddell, United States ambassador-designate to Spain, to explain how the United States government can "tolerate such an infamous exploitation of Spanish children."

GERMANY Hitler Hears Music At Vienna Festival

VIENNA, June 11.—(AP)—Richard Strauss, famous composer, conducted the Philharmonic orchestra today in celebration of his 75th birthday and shared applause with another music lover, Adolf Hitler.

The Reichsfuehrer came to Vienna yesterday to attend the annual theater week festival and join in honoring Strauss. Last night he attended the state opera to hear Strauss' "Der Friedenstag."

Polish Minority Quarters Seized

RATIBOR, Germany, June 11.—(AP)—German secret police today seized the headquarters of the Polish minority in this Silesia district.

The action, police explained, was in retaliation for the confiscation in recent days of the homes of German minorities in Polish Silesia and Olsa territory.

The home was turned over to the district leader of the Hitler youth for use.

ITALY Mussolini Pilots Editors on Air Trip

ROME, June 11.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini took five foreign newspapermen for a flight in a big trimotored bomber today after witnessing an aerial exhibition at Guidonia airport for delegates to the world congress of the aeronautical press.

Mussolini invited five of the aviation editors to fly with him. Among them were Merrill Mueller, of the United States, and Lou- riva Nobre Almeida, of Brazil.

The plane also carried a co-pilot, radio operator, and the minister of popular culture, Dino Alfieri.

RUSSIA Ruth Marie Rubens Disappears Again

MOSCOW, June 11.—(AP)—Ruth Marie Rubens, the mysterious American who vanished in December, 1937, only to turn up later in a Soviet Russian prison, has disappeared again.

The presiding judge of a Soviet court last Friday told her in the presence of a dozen foreign correspondents and two United States embassy representatives that she would be set free yesterday—having served an 18-month prison sentence for entering Russia without a passport.

Therefore she presumably was released yesterday. Since Friday, however, both Soviet authorities and the United States embassy have professed to have no information concerning her whereabouts.

Roaches Around the Laundry Tubs?

Here's how to get rid of them. First, keep the floor under the tubs always clean and dry—free from dampness, soap chips, etc. That's what attracts bugs. Second, get a can of Bee Brand Insect Powder. Sprinkle it behind the tubs and around the openings where the pipes go through the wall and into the cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. When roaches come out, give them another dose of powder. Third, sprinkle Bee Brand Powder in the path where roaches travel. Repeat these directions at weekly intervals and your laundry will soon be free of roaches.

Bee Brand really kills roaches, ants and other crawling insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use around the house. Insist on the genuine Bee Brand Insect Powder—in the red and yellow cans. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. Three sizes: 10¢, 25¢, 50¢.

NOTE: You can also kill roaches and ants, as well as flies and mosquitoes, with Bee Brand Insect Spray. Read directions on can.

MEXICO Mexicans Honor Dead Air Aviator

MEXICO CITY, June 11.—(AP)—Thousands packed a great part of the plaza fronting the presidential palace today for a last glimpse of Francisco Sarabia, Mexico's ace aviator killed in a crash at Washington June 7, while the army placed a heavy guard about the United States flying fortress which brought his body here.

The police report said there were shouts of "viva Sarabia and death to saboteurs" after the plane arrived. A few who then tossed rocks were seized.

YUGOSLAVIA King Peter Enrolls In Military School

BELGRADE, June 11.—(AP)—Shy little King Peter of Yugoslavia bade farewell to sheltered palace life today with his enrollment in his army's military college.

The 15-year-old monarch celebrated completion of his secondary school education with a family party at his marble palace outside Belgrade. His mother, Queen Marie, his uncle, Regent Prince Paul, and his little brothers, Prince Tomislav and Prince Andria, heard his tutor call him a "very good student."

King Peter, who will rule his 15,000,000 subjects after his 18th birthday in September, 1941, will start to military school this fall. He also will study law at Belgrade University in his "spare time."

PALESTINE Mayor of Jaffa Escapes Assassins

JERUSALEM, June 11.—(AP)—Raouf El Bitar, mayor of Jaffa, escaped a third attempt to assassinate him today in a new flare-up of Arab-Jewish strike which took three lives in the Holy Land.

Assailants fired on the mayor and his escort as they were walking through the Jaffa market. The escort returned the fire and killed one of the attackers.

PORTUGAL Pictures of King Carried by Clipper

LISBON, Portugal, June 11.—(AP)—Settling gracefully upon the water, Pan-American Airways Clipper PAA-21 alighted here today at 7:33 p. m. (2:33 p. m. Atlanta time) from the United States with pictures and newsreel films of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

The craft reached Lisbon 24 hours and 50 minutes after taking off from Port Washington, New York. The elapsed time included a 50-minute stop at Horta, the Azores, where it alighted at noon (7 a. m., E. S. T.).

HUNGARY Legislative Plan Drafted by Nazis

BUDAPEST, June 11.—(AP)—Hungarian Nazi chiefs, elated at expected co-ordination of Hungarian and German domestic policies as a result of the recent visit of German Interior Minister Wilhelm Frick, drafted a legislative program today for parliament which opens tomorrow.

Points reliably reported as heading the Nazi program included distribution of Hungary's huge estates among the landless peasants, strict application and extension of sweeping anti-Jewish laws and heavy taxes on wealth.

CHINA 20 Reported Ill Of Poisoned Wine

SHANGHAI, June 11.—(AP)—Japanese reported tonight 20 high Japanese and Chinese officials of the Nanking reformed government were ill in the former Chinese capital from drinking wine allegedly poisoned in "a daring attempt of Chinese enemies of the new regime at wholesale killing of the officialdom."

They asserted the attempt occurred last night at the Japanese consulate general when Japanese officials entertained Tamesaburo Shimizu, parliamentary vice minister of foreign affairs in Tokyo, at a banquet.

Japanese reports from Tientsin meanwhile said "a tense calm before the storm" prevailed in the North China port where the British concession has been threatened with isolation unless four Chinese there were surrendered to the Japanese.

Mission Bombing Protested by U. S.

PEIPING, China, June 10.—(AP)—(Delayed.)—The United States protested today to the Japanese embassy against the bombing May 24 of the American Southern Baptist mission at Laiyang, in northern Shantung province by a Japanese seaplane.

It was pointed out that this was the seventh Japanese bombing of American mission property during May. Nine such incidents were reported in March and four in April.

Police Discover Secret Railway

VALENCIENNES, France, June 11.—(AP)—Police reported today the discovery of an underground railway linking Belgium with France in the old Chateau Mont de Peruwelz, on the French side of the frontier, which they said apparently was used by an espionage ring to get military secrets out of France.

Two men and a woman found in the chateau, where a secret passage led to an underground, narrow-gauge line to Belgium, were held on charges of espionage and smuggling.

Spanish Celebrate Return of Virgin

HENDAYE, France.—(At the Spanish Frontier.)—June 11.—(AP) Spanish authorities closed the frontier station between Hendaye and Irun for three hours today while pilgrims from all parts of Spain celebrated the return of Asturias' famed Virgin of Covadonga to Spanish soil.

Spanish Catholics attributed the reconquest of Spain from the Moors in the eighth century to the protection of the Virgin.

During the civil war, Republican authorities in Asturias sent the statue to the embassy in Paris where officials found it after France recognized the Nationalist government.

TURKEY Minister Stresses Entente Solidarity

ANKARA, Turkey, June 11.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu, of Rumania, emphasized the solidarity of the Balkan Entente today upon his arrival for conversations with Turkish officials.

Gafencu asserted Yugoslavia was remaining faithful to the entente in which she is aligned with Rumania, Turkey and Greece.

The entente, he said, remained open to all Balkan states, adding that it was directed against no one. He set forth its mission as aimed at knitting together the ideals of the Balkan states and insuring European equilibrium and peace.

The industry will not be on a sound basis until it receives an adequate return for its products.

The industry cannot continue to operate on a product-price level which does not permit the refiner-marketer to meet his costs and recover what he pays for his raw material—crude oil.

We believe the public is willing to pay a fair price for gasoline and other petroleum products in order that the industry may continue to employ the 1,000,000 people on its payrolls, pay a fair return on the capital invested in the industry, carry a tax burden of more than $1,250,000,000 annually, and supply the consumer with the best fuels and lubricants at reasonable prices.

BANTAM AND NASH CAR LINES SHOWING STEADY INCREASE

BANTAM TRUCKS FOR QUICK SERVICE, NASH FOR STYLE

J. B. Dorris, General Manager Evans Motors, of Ga., Quite Enthusiastic.

Substantial increases in all departments of the business of Evans Motors of Georgia, Inc., including sales of both used cars and the 1939 American Bantam and Nash lines are handled by the company by the company are reported by officials of the firm, of which J. B. Dorris recently became general manager.

J. B. DORRIS.

"The interest of the public in the new Bantams, and resultant purchases of trucks and passenger units, are growing by leaps and bounds," Mr. Dorris said, "which is no more than is to be expected when we consider the utility and economy of operation of these sturdy, handsome cars which I believe are destined to fill a very definite place in American life. Users with one accord are expressing enthusiastic satisfaction at the phenomenal savings they enjoy, in first cost and in operating costs, of the entire Bantam line. Indeed, the rapidly increasing number of business concerns adopting Bantam for delivery purposes is the outstanding feature of the automobile business here in Atlanta during 1939."

"As for Nash, it is only necessary to say that the Nash sales for 1939 are running 96 per cent above last year, while sales for the industry as a whole have increased 40 per cent. This forward surge is due to the fact that Nash, one of the highest style cars on the market, has also maintained and increased its excellence in quality and performance."

A prominent figure in automotive circles for many years, Mr. Dorris has a quarter of a century's experience as factory executive and as the operator of a large distributorship, as well as in other capacities, so that the record of accomplishment he is making in

Heads of Departments Evans Motors of Georgia, Inc.

Standing alongside two of the popular lines of the Evans Motors of Georgia, Inc.—Nash and Bantam—are, left to right, F. A. Crites, service manager; Gordon Milling, parts manager; Jack Windham, used car manager; George Sheets, sales manager, Bantam division.

this connection with Evans Motors of Georgia, Inc., is not surprising to those who are familiar with his past achievements of experience and a large acquaintance in local automotive circles, as manager of the largest used car operations in this section, as used car salesman; George Sheets, another local automobile man, who has had several years of experience in the small car field, as sales manager of the Bantam division, a post in which he assumes the additional responsibilities which his aggressiveness, experience and ability merit; and Gordon Milling, with 20 years' experience and a large acquaintance in local automotive circles, as manager of the large Evans' southeastern parts department.

"With the co-operation of such men, and our entire staff of loyal workers, it is easy to understand why our business is forging ahead so rapidly in all departments," Mr. Dorris said. "Not only the aggressiveness of their efforts, but the quality products of Evans Motors handles and the public's approval of them, contribute to the gratifying results, as also does the well-known policy of the Evans Motors organization—the policy of offering greater values, the foundation on which the Evans' time-honored slogan, 'Famous for Bargains,' is based."

"Whether a customer buys a bolt or a nut in the parts department, a new Nash Ambassador Eight, one of our quality used cars or a smart, economical American Bantam, we want that customer always to feel at home here and want to come back."

"This means we must give values—that is the basic Evans policy. In our two lines of new cars, the outstanding worth of Nash and Bantam in their fields is recognized on all sides, and as to used cars, it is only necessary to say the great majority of our used car stocks are purchased for cash—a circumstance which in itself largely explains the fact that, quality considered, our used car values are so exceptionally attractive to prospective purchasers."

10,000 'GRIPPERS' UNDER CAR WITH U. S. ROYAL DE LUXE

New Tire in U. S. Line Featured by U. S. Tire Supply Concern.

Motorists are fast learning of the advantages offered by the big United States Tire Supply house, owned and managed by S. L. (Sam) Martin, at 603 West Peachtree street, corner of North avenue.

Featured by the concern is a complete line of the popular U. S. tires, chief of which just now is the U. S. Royal De Luxe tire.

"This is a tire that does things you never dreamed a tire could do," said Sam Martin, in his enthusiasm about the merits of this particular tire among the others of the U. S. tire line. "In this tire 2,500 extra grippers go into action the instant you touch your brakes—and that's something motorists should know about and appreciate," continued Martin.

According to advanced information the Royal De Luxe tire is so constructed that it has a quick-stopping safety device basically new in principle and design. The new U. S. Royal De Luxe is the first and only tire ever built with this double action non-skid tread, possessing everything a conventional tread design can have plus a new history-making road-gripping mechanism that bites through slippery road film on wet pavements, maintains the snug tirehold that makes quick, straight line stops possible.

"Literally a 'tread within a tread.' It gives a motorist more than 2,500 extra gripping edges on each tire," is the way the well-known tire distributor puts it. In addition to its greatly improved shoulder-to-shoulder pattern of Cogwheel blocks, this U. S. Royal De Luxe places on the road more than 2,500 extra, sharp, movable gripping edges, set at the angle of greatest resistance to forward and side skids.

Test drivers named it "brake-action" tread because they found that the instant brakes are applied those 2,500 "grippers" on each tire (10,000 in all under your car) go into action, open up, crowd against the road surface and end less against sharp-biting tough tread edges that grab, grip and hold—bringing the car to a soft, quick, straight-line stop.

Royal De Luxe gives motorists positive finger-tip control at every speed. Few of us realize that mighty natural powers, winds of hurricane violence, treacherous dips and unseen bumps in the road, constantly seek to push our fast moving cars off the highway, or wrest the steering wheel from our hands. To help combat these violent forces and at the same time to make possible at modern speeds the finger-tip steering control ev-

Puritan Mills of Atlanta Show Results of My-T-Pure Hog Ration

The Puritan Mills of Atlanta are featuring extensively at this time their My-T-Pure Pig and Hog Ration, containing Manamar, the mineral rich food from the sea. Manamar is a result of more than 30 years' research work on the part of its founder, Philip R. Park, to produce a product that would assist in the maintenance of flocks and herds in vigorous health while keeping up maximum production, making safe the high-speed feeding which is necessary under modern conditions.

The Puritan Mills are interested in promoting better feeding programs in the interest of hog raisers to enable them to get the most out of their pigs and hogs, and it is with this in view that they have prepared especially their My-T-Pure Pig and Hog Ration for growing young pigs and feeding brood sows. They suggest in growing hogs for market that the feeder should take the following factors under serious consideration at all times:

1. Good hogs: By this they mean a prolific strain of hogs of standard breeds that have been bred for rapid growth and economical gains that will market with good weight and quick finish.

2. To follow sanitary methods in hog sanitation. Arrangements should always be made to provide sanitary pens at farrowing time and if possible to keep pigs on clean ground. Many common ailments that failed to show until a later date which definitely check the rate of growth, are many times the direct result of unsanitary surroundings for the pigs at weaning age.

Every driver wants, U. S. Rubber engineers have designed into the U. S. Royal De Luxe features that make steering steadier and easier, that add immeasurably to the driver's sense of security, increase driving confidence.

Printing of Right Kind Furnished By Williams

One of the better ways to judge of a business concern—its success, its ability and dependability—is to scan its printing. Printers' art has much to do with the opinions of people who receive it as to the type of business it exploits and how well the business is handled.

That's the reason many business concerns turn to printers who make a specialty of producing a high type of printing that appeals to the public. It makes no difference whether it is a small card or circular—whether a letterhead—a pamphlet or booklet giving some interesting data about the business—a well-executed job of printing shows with what care the concern takes of its printed matter. Such jobs correctly and suitably printed, with correct and catchy illustrations, with harmonious color work—all makes its impress upon a prospective customer.

The Williams Printing Company, in the Rhodes annex, on Marietta street, has been making its mark in the time, not only in the actual work of printing the job, but gives thought and care to a printing customer in designing and assisting in the preparation of his "copy." That is one of the features of this house that is making its work popular with printing customers. Mr. Williams, himself a practical printer, and with a splendid force of typographers in the mechanical department, supplied with modern machinery for good printing, makes for a good printing job. And, as stated, with solicitors to call at your service, trained in the creation of good "copy," with knowledge of suitable colors, when colors are desired, gives double assurance of a complete and satisfactory piece of printing.

A phone call to the Williams than you think to the appeal of your next printing job. Suppose you try it?

TO BE HELD TODAY*Former Atlantan Died at Home Near Conyers.

Funeral services for A. M. Laseter, 66, formerly of Atlanta, who died Saturday night at his home near Conyers, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Honey Creek Baptist church.

Mr. Laseter lived here until nine years ago. He was a Mason and a member of the Baptist church. Surviving him are his wife; a daughter, Miss Louise Laseter; a grandson, Charles White; a son-in-law, Preston White; three brothers, Luke, John and Joe Laseter; and four sisters, Mrs. J. J. Garrett, Mrs. D. L. Thornton, Mrs. O. C. Johnson and Miss Etha Laseter, of Atlanta.

Pedestrian violation of traffic ordinances in Washington, D. C., may result in a maximum fine of $300 or 10 days in jail.

'GREAT MAN VOTES'
RATED SUPERB FILM*Barrymore Leads Fine Cast in Capitol Movie.

There's a pot of entertainment gold at the end of the movie rainbow in Atlanta. The picture is "The Great Man Votes," which opened yesterday at the Capitol. Everybody in and associated with it deserves 21-gun salutes.

John Barrymore, in the lead, is superb. Peter Holden and Virginia Weidler, as his children; Katherine Alexander as Miss Billow; Donald MacBride, as Iron Hat McCarty; Granville Bates, as the mayor; Luis Alberni, as a bootlegger, and J. M. Kerrigan, as Hot Shot Gillings, all merit milky ways of stars.

Garson Kanin directed. Where has he been all these years? The guy's got plenty! John Twist wrote the screen play and some of the best dialogue ever encountered in a theater. By all means, see this show.

On the stage are Jackie Green, song and comedy star; Walter and Lee, comedians; N. A. and N. and Charles, dancers; Yvonne Belmont, Atlanta's own singing discovery, and the Three Busy B's, clever and lively dance trio. Short subjects complete a good bill. —L. F.

POSTMASTERS OPEN
CONVENTION TODAY*Ramspeck and Peterson
Among Those To Address
Session.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 11.—(AP) The men and women of Georgia who supervise the handling of your daily mail—your postmasters—launch here tomorrow a two-day discussion looking toward ways and means of improving the postal service.

The post office department is one of the greatest single business institutions in the world, with some 40,000 postmasters all working under direction of the postmaster general, John E. Jones, of Lulu, second vice president of the Georgia branch of the National League of District Postmasters, said in a pre-convention statement.

"At our convention we have representatives from the post office department who give us instruction as to policy and procedure, and convey to us thoughts, aims and purposes of our department and our government.

"Our senators and congressmen discuss legislation beneficial to service employees and for the good of the service, such as civil service, placing fourth class postmasters on salary basis instead of cancellation, and retirement benefits.

"We sponsor such legislation as will benefit postmasters, but in the main we are always striving to improve service to the postal patrons."

Speakers at the current convention which ends Tuesday afternoon include Representatives Robert Ramspeck, of Decatur, and Hays E. Peterson, of Albany, representatives of the post office department, and others. Mrs. L. B. L. Rushing, of Glennville, is president of the Georgia organization.

Yugoslavia recently began manufacture of steel and production of electrolytic copper.

Brings Back Souvenir of Royalty's Visit'TRUE GREATNESS' URGED AT ATHENS

Many May Be Noted, Yet Small, Dr. Stoves Tells Georgia Graduates.

ATHENS, Ga., June 11.—(AP)—University of Georgia seniors were advised today to seek "true greatness" rather than "illusory success" in the baccalaureate sermon delivered by the Rev. George Stoves, Macon pastor.

"Greatness is not notoriety," he declared. "A man may be very noted and at the same time very small. Greatness is never spectacular. Greatness is never loud but always modest."

Another speaker, Bishop Thomas Darst, of Wilmington, N. C., urged the graduates to "look beyond the world's storm and stress" into "the heart and mind of God."

"Build towers with your lives," he said, "towers which will fly by day the flag of some great loyalty, and shining purpose that will carry you over difficulty and danger, and by night let your tower carry a light, a light of great faith and great vision."

Dr. Stoves praised the benefactions of the late George Foster Peabody, Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller, whose fortunes, he said, were administered "for the good of mankind through the establishment of colleges, universities, libraries and hospitals."

The speaker omitted reference to military heroes in naming famous personages to illustrate his text, asserting the world has ceased to regard men who "destroy human life" as great.

Dr. Stoves is a native of England who moved to the United States at the age of 18. He served churches in Alabama and Tennessee before the Macon assignment.

Commencement week activities will continue tomorrow with the observance of Alumni Day. More than 700 seniors will receive diplomas Tuesday morning after President Rufus Harris, of Tulane University, delivers the baccalaureate address.

Atlanta Girl Finds Biggest ThrillIn Seeing King, Queen on Tour

By BETTY MATHEIS.

A greeting from Queen Elizabeth as she drove by and possession of a piece of the King's birthday cake didn't make Miss Lillian Pearson, of 1215 Mansfield avenue, Atlanta, the least bit high-spirited, for she stepped aboard the bus after three days spent viewing royalty in Ottawa, and started the long journey back home.

Miss Pearson made the trip to Canada, her former home, in response to a hurried call from her sister, Mrs. B. S. McKenzie, who suggested the trip a little more than a week before the scheduled arrival of the royal party. To make the journey, the vivacious Atlanta girl worked until 11 o'clock every night of the preceding week—a trial, as any girl will testify, when she should be getting clothes together.

45 Minutes in Rain.

But despite all the difficulties involved in such a journey, Miss Pearson's enthusiasm could not be dampened, even by the 45-minute wait in the rain to see the King and Queen in their evening clothes.

The small piece of fruit cake which was part of the large birthday cake at the King's party is probably Miss Pearson's most prized possession. It is the traditional English birthday confection, baked weeks ahead of time and allowed to season.

Mrs. W. W. Cory, aunt of the Atlanta girl, was a guest at the garden party in the King's honor and gave her piece of the cake to her niece.

The Queen is described by Miss Pearson as thin and sylph-like, not at all like her pictures, and possessor of a perfect complexion. Her costumes were the envy of the feminine population of Canada.

Both the King and Queen appeared much younger than she had expected.

King-Queen Hold Hands.

Miss Pearson revealed the hitherto unpublished fact that their majesties were soon to hold hands in public. Before either was to speak, she said, a look and nod of approval passed between them. Whenever seating arrangements permitted the King would reach out and put his wife's hand, despite the fact that thousands of eyes were upon them.

This gesture, and the complete naturalness of the couple, endeared them to the Canadian people and made one democratic American woman wonder why Americans always have believed that royalty was "stuck-up," uninteresting and rather dull.

Such, surely, was not the impression left by the modern version of English royalty. For even children, who cannot be fooled easily, Miss Pearson said, were delighted with the King and Queen.

Little Kenneth Greene, son of one of Miss Pearson's best friends, acted as one of the two pages to her majesty when parliament

Miss Lillian Pearson displays her souvenir flags which she brought back from her visit to Ottawa, where she saw the King and Queen. Flags like these lined the streets of the city. Miss Pearson also is the proud owner of a piece of the King's birthday cake. The Queen smiled and spoke to her as Her Majesty passed by in her carriage.

ARE YOUR FALSE TEETH

false friends

- 1 DOES THEIR STAINED LOOK SHOUT "FALSE"?
- 2 DO THEY GIVE YOU "DENTURE BREATH"?
- 3 ARE GUMS SORE DUE TO UNCLEAN PLATES?

NOT IF YOU USE POLIDENT

Of course you clean your plate or bridge. You may even soak it in a mouth wash. But still your denture may be only half-clean. And unless it is truly clean and purified it can mean real trouble!

For "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors—is caused by half-clean plates. And their tell-tale stains can actually shout "false". Often they result in sore gums—even in serious infection.

But even worst stains, food deposits, tarnish and odors are dissolved away with Polident. No acid or danger. No brushing. Your plate looks better and feels better. Denture breath is prevented—and your mouth feels fresher and sweeter.

Dentists everywhere recommend Polident to all who wear plates or removable bridges. Millions use it daily. Sold at all drugstores—3 oz. can 30¢—7 oz. can 60¢. And your money back if not delighted.

the Scottish thistle and the American goldenrod in shades of Eleanor blue. A tucked blouse was divided from the skirt by a belt of royal blue, her wide-brimmed hat and purse were of the same shade. She carried white gloves. In the car with the first ladies of the two lands was the President's mother, wearing a black chiffon dress with white roses and a black turban.

James Roosevelt Alone. King George selected a double-breasted, grayish-blue striped sack suit. His shirt and necktie were blue and he carried a gray felt hat. The President wore a plain blue serge suit and a Panama hat. Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada rode alone to church as did the President's eldest son, James, with Betsy, his wife, and Sara, his eight-year-old daughter. James is a vestryman at the church. In a group confessional, the King and Queen, President and Mrs. Roosevelt, joined in the words: "Let us humbly confess our sins before Almighty God." Bishop Tucker gave absolution. Then, their majesties joined in reciting the Lord's prayer and the singing of "Glory be to the Father and to the Son and to the Holy Ghost."

The morning's lessons were taken from the fourth chapter of Isaiah and the first chapter of the Epistle of St. John.

Prayers were given for peace and grace and there was a special prayer for "Elizabeth, Queen Mother Mary and Princess Elizabeth," with Mr. Wilson asking God to "give them grace and happiness and bring them to Thy kingdom."

Additional prayers and hymns were followed by the sermon, whose text was from the fourth chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians.

In it, Bishop Tucker asserted that "we can love our neighbors as ourselves only when we make the definition of neighbor all-inclusive."

"But sometimes," he added, "our interests in our own country have led to extreme nationalism, race prejudice and sectarian persecution."

He rebuked Christians who practice Christianity for selfish motives and asserted that "regeneration of the individual and the regeneration of the social order are not separate aims."

Arthur DeGroff, a vestryman, proprietor of a bus line and manager of the Hyde Park baseball team, passed a silver collection plate to the President and his royal guests. Although the King ordinarily does not carry money, he dropped in some folded bills—American money.

A benediction by Bishop Tucker, the recessional hymn, and a moment of silent prayer while an altar boy snuffed out lighted tapers, concluding the services. After the services, Mrs. Roosevelt changed quickly into a summery frock and hurried over to the hill-top cottage to make sure all was ready for the picnic.

MY DAY

King, Queen So Prompt
That F. D. R. Gasps,
First Lady Is Pleased.

ington's tomb so we allowed a little time for the rest of the party to arrive there. Then we went ashore to be greeted by Mrs. Horace M. Townner, regent of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, and Mr. Wall, who is now in charge. It was all beautifully arranged. After the laying of the wreath, we made the tour of the house and the gardens. Where the old Scotch gardener with his medals on, nearly fainted at the opportunity of presenting a bunch of flowers to her majesty and shaking hands with his King.

Visit CCC Camp.

There was some mixup about where the cars were to meet us, but they were soon found out and we were off again for our next stop, which was at the Civilian Conservation Corps camp. His majesty was deeply interested in seeing the barracks and the mess hall. He looked over the menus served to the boys and asked the price which was spent on food for them per day. He then looked at photographs put up for his inspection of other camps. A whole collection of these photographs was sent over by Mr. Robert Fechine, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, for presentation to the King afterwards. I have a feeling he will examine them with care, for he seemed deeply interested in this government enterprise.

From there we went to Arlington. The ceremony at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier always is to me a deeply moving scene. Friday we went also to the Canadian cross. In both places the King's demeanor added dignity to a scene which is always impressive and, when "taps" was played, I was not the only one who stood with a lump in my throat. Afterwards, several people told me, that to them, Arlington was the unforgettable moment of the whole day.

Rest for Half Hour.

Home again and a half hour of rest before a very interesting group of people gathered on the lawn for tea. To me it is always a pity that one has to crowd so much into such a short time. I felt that both the King and Queen would have been glad to be able to hold longer talks with many of the men and women who, in the few minutes allotted them, tried to crowd in the salient points of whatever subjects in which their majesties were interested.

By 6 o'clock the President, the King, Elliott, Ruth and I were swimming in the pool. At 7:45 little Diana Hopkins and I were waiting in the hall for their majesties to come out of their rooms on their way to the British embassy for dinner. Diana is a solemn little girl and she was speechless when the King and Queen came down the hall. She made her little curtsy to each one and when they asked her questions she managed to answer, but her eyes never left the Queen. After it was over I said: "Diana did she look as much as the fairy Queen as you expected?" With a little gasp she said: "Oh, yes." And she did, for the Queen's spangled tulle dress with her lovely jewels and tiara in her hair, made her seem like someone out of a story book.

People Wave Good-bye.

They started ahead of us, of course, for the embassy, but when we drove along the streets, crowds lined them all the way and even when we came out at 10:30, the people were still there waiting to wave good-bye. They have a way of making friends, these young people. They went at once to their train. We returned to the White House to change and then went to ours, and reached Highland Saturday morning at 9:30.

Numerous details have taken up our time today. The old house has been filled with flowers by my mother-in-law's kind friends, though there is not the same sense of space here as in the White House. I hope that the quiet of the country will be welcome after the busy day which their majesties have been through.

I took the press on a tour right after lunch on Saturday.

Johnny arrived late Saturday afternoon. I am glad that, even though Anne cannot be here, he had an opportunity to meet their majesties so that he could tell Anne about them afterwards.

This morning we left the house at 10:50 to go to St. James church. I will tell you tomorrow about the rest of the day for I fear that this column is somewhat long already.

KING AND QUEEN DINE ON HOT DOGS

ter of the crown. Her hose and slippers were also of gray and again a single gardenia nestled on her left shoulder. The King was toggled in a dark brown sports suit and the President in a gray lounge suit.

The President drove over to the picnic grounds at his cottage with Queen Elizabeth by his side and the King and President's mother in the rear seat.

At the cottage, tables were spread on the stone porch which looked out across forests swayed by a welcome breeze to the picturesque Hudson and its palisades. The tables were for their majesties. Chairs among the trees were for the rest of the 150 guests. Invited to the picnic were the entire royal entourage, more than a score of members of the White House staff, Dutchess county neighbors, and persons employed on the Roosevelt estate.

Ideal Picnic Spot.

Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau and Governor and Mrs. Herbert Lehman, of New York, mingled with such individuals as Moses Smith, caretaker and tenant on the estate.

The field stone cottage, designed by the President, is on the highest spot of the 1,200 Roosevelt acres.

Newly constructed, it has not been completely furnished but its grounds provided an ideal spot for a picnic. Semi-circular stone fireplaces topped by grills were at hand for the roasting of hot dogs. But such viands as smoked and plain turkey, salads, baked beans and brown bread loaded an unpainted wooden table in the living room of the cottage. Beer and soft drinks were the thirst-quenchers.

A temporary platform of unpainted planks doubled the size of the porch, affording room for a piano and entertainment by two Oklahoma Indians, Ish-Ti-Opi and Princess Te Ata.

The President and the Queen, Mrs. Lehman and Secretary Morgenthau sat at one of the picnic tables on the porch of the Dutchess Hill cottage.

At the next table were the King, the President's mother, Governor Lehman and Mrs. Morgenthau.

At the other tables were: Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, Mrs. Henry St. George, wife of the bishop, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Mrs. Vincent Astor.

Lady Lindsay, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Price Collier, Gerald Morgan—the latter two close friends of the Roosevelts.

Mrs. Morgan, Lady Nunburnholme, lady-in-waiting; the Earl of Eldon, lord-in-waiting to the King; Lydig Hoyt, another neighbor.

Mrs. Myron Taylor; Mrs. Hoyt; the Earl of Airliel, lord chamberlain to the Queen; Lieutenant Colonel Piers W. Legh, equerry to the King. Lady Katharine Seymour, lady-in-waiting; the President's eldest son, James; Mrs. Tracy Dows and Henry Hooker.

For the Indian program, replete with colorful costumes and feathered headdresses, Kuruks Pahitu beat the tom-tom and Edward Pfeiffer was at the piano.

Songs and legends of the Senecas, Dakotas, Zunis, Choctaws, Ojibways, Shawanewis, and Navajos were on the program of Princess Te Ata and Ish-Ti-Opi. Costumes of the different tribes added a colorful note.

Two dozen guests were asked to the informal dinner at the Hyde Park house, the last meal on American soil for the visiting rulers.

And, at 10:09 p. m., the King and Queen, having sampled American ways for four days, started back to Canada tonight on their return home.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and the President's mother brought their royal guests down to the plain, red brick station and waved them on their way, just as ordinary hosts do for ordinary week-end guests.

Informality, which had characterized their majesties' stay at the Roosevelt family home here continued to the last moment, in contrast with the triumphs and pageantry with which the national capital and New York city had hailed them.

Before departing, King George gave the President a gold ring well as a token of appreciation, not only to the chief executive, but also to the nation he represents, for four momentous days in which the King and Queen were taken into the hearts of America.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt remained at the station for a few minutes and then rode back to their country estate.

James, John and Franklin Roosevelt Jr., the President's sons, also were on hand at the station, where hundreds sang "Auld Lang Syne" to the King and Queen as they waved goodbye from the rear platform.

Dedicated to Dad...

You love him more than anything in the world—because he's Your Dad. And there are memories of him you will never forget. The funny way his chin scratched when you kissed him good night... the look in his eyes when you won the high school oratory contest... the bicycle you found in the attic a week before Christmas.

This is one day you will pause and acknowledge your love for him again. One day... dedicated to Dad... in remembrance of a lifetime dedicated to you.

Mother "Runs Around" Her Daughter Loses Beau

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am terribly upset over my situation and I'm asking you what to do? Father makes a good living and we have a lovely home, but what goes on inside is something else. Father and mother lead a cat and dog life and mother gets it back on him by running around with men of low reputation. My younger brothers haven't got on to it yet, but I have suffered from it. A year ago my best beau told me mother knew about our family and told him he couldn't afford to be mixed up in such a mess. That nearly killed me, but now I have a new boy friend and live in terror for fear he will find out and quit me. Please don't say talk it over with mother. I've tried that and it amounted to nothing.

NINETEEN.

Answer: My dear child, you have a remarkable understanding of human nature that's going to save you from disaster. Now keep your chin up and don't be downed by one failure. You will win. It can't worsen matters for you to have another talk with your mother, telling her how she has already broken up one love affair for you and will likely break up another. If she has no innate decency left and no pity for you then you should appeal to your father to clean up the mess. If he has any manhood he won't submit to present conditions. In the meantime, if you have grandparents, aunts or uncles you can visit it would be well for you to leave home for the summer.

What can a mother be thinking of when she behaves this way? What can she expect for herself or her children but ultimate disgrace? What of her old age when she may not have a husband as a backstop, when her children whom she's disgraced have turned on her in loathing and she's left to the mercies of her low companions.

Incidentally it's right ironical that the children of the very poor get a much better break under such circumstances than the children of the well-to-do; for the state steps in to save the underprivileged youngsters of the wicked poor while there's nobody to keep the children of the wicked well-to-do from going straight to the devil; unless it happens that they are better than their parents and immune to the evil influences of environment.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Will you be so kind as to advise us what to do? Our lovely college graduate daughter has married a Russian lout who has four grown children. His wife chased him out and divorced him because he was no-account. The small almond-eyed rascal tricked our daughter, extorted a thousand dollars from her and is now after a second thousand which he will probably get. Our lawyer tells us there are judgments against him amounting to several thousand dollars and also advises us that the marriage can be annulled. We don't know what to do as she is infatuated with him.

A FATHER.

Answer: You've taken the right step in employing a lawyer and if you will add to this a warrant that will put Mr. Russian behind the bars where he belongs, the rest of the case will take care of itself. No use to temporize with a foolish girl who is under the spell of an accomplished rascal. Whatever radical steps you may take to protect her will be resented now; but she will live to see the day she will thank you for saving her from herself.

An Opening Five Major Suit Bid Is An Indirect Slam Try

By Harold Sharpsteen.

There is little chance for partner to mistake the meaning of a sudden and decisive opening bid of five in a major suit fired broadside from across the table. Or is there?

Slips In Large Sizes

By Barbara Bell

Your dresses will fit beautifully over this slip (1688-B), smooth and slick, without a line or wrinkle. It's made with a small waist and flat diaphragm and with a little fullness at the hem to go with fuller frocks. The bra-top is gathered to give a nice bosom line. You can make it with shoulder straps as well as with the built-up shoulders—the pattern provides for both. It's easy to do, for there are only five simple steps in the making.

A whole wardrobe of slips like this will make your summer happier, and you'll save enough, by making your own, so that you can have them in luxury materials—plaid satin, lingerie crepe, and linens to wear under tub clothes. Barbara Bell pattern No. 1688-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 2 3/4 yards of 39-inch material for shoulder strap slip; 1 yard of ribbon. For built-up shoulders, 2 7/8 yards.

Send for Barbara Bell's spring and summer pattern book! Make your own smart new frocks for street, daytime and afternoon, with these simple, carefully planned designs! It's chic, it's easy, it's economical, to sew your own. Each pattern includes a step-by-step chart to guide beginners. Price of pattern, 15 cents. Price of pattern book, 15 cents. Don't send stamps.

of five in a major suit fired broadside from across the table. Or is there?

Is partner apt to frantically hurdle furniture for the nearest exit after a sensational opening blast of six in any suit?

ONCE IN A LIFETIME. It might fall to your lot to be caught in the direct line of fire of one of these Big Berthas of bridge just once in a lifetime. But, once might prove fatal, so it stands you well to be prepared.

Logically enough an opening five major suit bid is an indirect slam try. It could not be mistaken for anything else.

WHEN IT IS DONE. But, when is it done, and why? An opening five-major suit bid shows:

(a) A hand containing 11 sure winners.

(b) Two losers . . . and both the losers are trump honors.

To open five hearts, takes something like:

(1) S-A-K-Q-J D—C-A-K

H-Q-J 10 9 8 6 5 C-A-K

(2) S-A-K-Q D—A-K

H-K-J 10 9 8 7 5 C-A-K

TWO MISSING HONORS.

When declarer opens five, he is hoping to locate one or both of these missing top trump honors in partner's hand.

Responder, holding either the heart or king or queen raises to six. If he holds any two of the three, partner jumps immediately to seven.

Under any other circumstances, he should pass.

An opening bid of six in any suit is just one step higher. Declarer has 12 sure tricks, one trump loser . . . the missing ace or king or queen.

ONE MISSING HONOR.

Holding any one, partner raises to seven. Otherwise, he must pass.

An opening six bid requires the equivalent of:

S-K-Q-J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2

H—D—C—A

WHAT A SHAME?

So partner passes the opening six, spade bid, holding:

S—D—A-K-Q-J 10

H-A-K-Q-J C-K-Q-J 10

But would he?

"It's right queer the way women feel about givin' a party. They want to do it to pay their social debts, but they rejoice when it's over like they do when they've had a tooth pulled."

You Need Not Be Uncomfortable Just Because the Thermometer Is High

By Lillian Mae.

Yes, it's hot and we're uncomfortable. But why not look around you and find those items which have worked up just for your comfort in such weather?

Cosmetic manufacturers and beauty authorities are always alert to bring to you those products which suit the season and help you to look and feel your best at all times. In looking about me I've found a number of things which probably you haven't found or thought seriously about, but which will go a long way toward reviving you. First of all, if you have a birthmark or blemish of any kind on your face, neck or arms, you can use a cream—which acts as powder foundation—that will take you forth with not a sign of anything but the evenest of complexions. It's the most remarkable thing I've ever seen of the kind. You may remember I called it to your attention a few months ago. Well, now that you will want to go swimming I am reminding you of it again, for it will even withstand water—and perspiration.

Of course you will need a sun lotion. Let me suggest one that is tinted—affords excellent protection for the skin while exposed to sun, wind or water, by screening out the sun's burning rays. And it has a lovely, delicate fragrance.

For summer daintiness, of course you cannot overlook a good deodorant. There is a non-greasy cream—much like a vanishing cream—soft, soothing, to be used either before or after shaving. It will not stain clothing, and is effective as a non-perspirant if used two or three times a week. If you use this cream, you can be sure that you will not offend your companions with perspiration odor.

What about your feet? Most of us do have foot troubles during summer. Try using the super-soft foot pads which come in sizes for corns, bunions and callouses. Their fleecy fiber comes between your foot and any outside pressure. And they have a seal tip scalloped edge which means they won't come off in your bath or catch on your stockings. Used on back of your heel, they will prevent chafing or blisters. On instep or side of your foot they will prevent ridges or sores from pumps which don't fit exactly right.

Now for a very grand refreshing and invigorating bath at least twice a day. Nothing so relaxes and cools as a tub of piny bubbles. I'm recommending today a liquid pine essence that releases itself into millions of sparkling bubbles under the force of running water. And, incidentally, it is packed in a beautiful gift box—just in case!

With these aids to summer comfort you can considerably lower your sizzling temperature, whether you are vacationing or staying at home. Phone me and I'll tell you more about them and where they may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

You'll Like Home Wedding If You're a Sentimentalist

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

A simple home wedding doesn't always turn out to be as simple as it sounds. In fact, getting the house ready for a white is really harder than decorating a church if you are attempting to make any kind of a pageant of the wedding, and that is what it should be.

WHITE AND GREEN.

But there are lots of people who feel sentimental about home wedding, and we agree with them. The main thing, in making plans, is to recognize the problems and start solving them well in advance. If there are to be many guests, that means folding chairs, which are going to disrupt the design of your house to begin with. So the rest of the room, the walls mainly, should be simplified and decorated to give a unified effect.

One smart decorator moves out as much furniture as possible and takes two layers of white tulle, and stretches it over the walls of a room for a wedding, then hangs garlands of greenery from the molding and ties them with wide white satin bows. Small tables of uniform size are covered with white and placed at regular intervals around the room to hold tall candles.

For an altar, where there isn't a suitable alcove or bay, he takes two wide tall panels of beaverboard or plywood with easel backs so they will stand alone. These he covers with silver paper and sets in front of a wall draped in white theatrical satin—the silver panels are set forward a foot from the wall and with a space of three or four feet between them. This creates an alcove with white satin back drop framed at the sides with silver panels. Into this alcove he sets a row of very tall candles, and at the sides, a pair of matched evergreen trees decorated with stylized garlands of white flowers.

On the other side of the wire mesh. Add satin kneeling cushions and you'd have a lovely wedding scene there.

In the dining room, the white silver and green theme is continued—with white tablecloth, silver service and accessories, greenery tied with white satin for decorations. Since the wedding march always leads to budgets, why not learn about them ahead. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for her bulletin "Building a Budget."

During Leisure Increase Your Knowledge

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you feel that you are a square peg in a round hole, or that you are not getting ahead fast enough, by all means read Walter B. Pitkin's new book, "Making Good before Forty," published by Robert M. McBride & Company. It will certainly make you sit up and take stock of your ability and opportunities—some of which you may have overlooked!

For example, one element which may prove a door opener to opportunity is your leisure. What happens to yours? It is Mr. Pitkin's theory (and the more you read about it the more logical it seems) that leisure should be used for something you really want to do. But he assumes there is some kind of work you want to do. He doesn't refer to bridge or bingo!

If you are already engaged in the work that satisfies you most it is suggested that you may find greatest pleasure in using your leisure to extend your skill or knowledge. Although you are required to work only a 40-hour week, your enthusiasm and determination to make good may run it up to 80 hours!

On the other hand, you may be a misfit. In these days of depression, the author points out that it is sometimes an advantage to be able to do several things well and that your leisure may be employed to develop skill in the job you would like to have. The man who can do two kinds of work well is considered to have greater opportunity than the man who does only one; the man with four different types of skill is considered to have about seven times the opportunity of the man with only one skill.

To quote from the book: "If you dislike your job, then you must push your leisure time study of another field which you prefer. Meanwhile, you adopt a philosophical attitude toward 'bread and butter.' You learn that all of us have to do many things we thoroughly dislike."

But, you may object, what about rest? Unless you rest, you are not any good at the job which assures your bread and butter! It does not require much reading between the lines to convince anyone that "Making Good before Forty" takes energy and health, and the famous success analyst has not ignored rest as an essential factor, but has given it a different slant.

"The trick of resting," he says, "is to cease using tired muscles and to use other well-rested muscles. It makes little difference what you do when weary, so long as you do something utterly different from the work just finished."

Does this conflict with the plan for leisure? Not at all. The change of activity is just an interlude and part of a much larger pattern, but, he warns, it is very important. If you take up the hobby which uses your work skill without first "resting" to dissolve the muscle tensions of office work, you will get nowhere. When you have been toiling over the month's bills, this "rest" may be in the form of a brisk walk, or—my suggestion—a 20-minute workout which uses the large muscles of the trunk.

"Making Good before Forty" is not to be interpreted as success in money-making alone. The writer considers a well-rounded life to be the real measure of success and that such a life is impossible if a man aims too high and tries to go beyond his own powers. Send a stamped return envelope to Miss Kain, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for "Vaselines and Belittles," a leaflet of exercises that uses the large muscles of the body.

Woman's Quiz

Q. How may I eradicate bedbugs from overstuffed furniture?

A. The best method is fumigation, either in connection with a general fumigation of the house or in the vault of a dependable storage company or insect exterminator. Vault-fumigation services are available at reasonable rates in most cities. If such services are not available, the furniture should be placed on an open porch or in a shed and the parts affected treated with liberal applications of clear gasoline. Frequently the early elimination of bedbugs from upholstered furniture, where they have become established after having been brought into the home on clothing, prevents room infestation.

Q. Is the death rate for newborn babies increasing or declining?

A. In 1915 the infant death rate was 100 per 1,000 live births. In 1937, it was 54.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Women's Editor of The Constitution, Washington Service Bureau, 1015 15th street, N. Movie Studios Need Stories For Their Top-Notch Stars

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.—Universal is preparing a western to star Mae West and W. C. Fields. RKO-Radio is not the only Hollywood studio after Charles Laughton (for "Hunchback of Notre Dame"). Paramount is looking for a suitable part for the bulky British actor. . . . Here are some more studio story needs—Metro is looking for another sultry epic for Hedy Lamarr to follow "Tropical Holiday." . . . McCarey is interested in material on "The Daring Side." . . . Warners want a modern story for Paul Muni, preferably with a timely angle. . . . Also a modern story for Betty Davis. . . . David Loew has an agreement with Orson Welles to star him in a picture—if he can find a role dramatic enough for his talents.

Lana Turner, Richard Carlson, Mr. Ayres is also scheduled for "Pretty Penny," with Florence Rice. . . . David Niven has again been borrowed from Samuel Goldwyn—this time by Wanger for the lead opposite Loretta Young in "Whose Wife?" David plays the part of an illusionist—originally scheduled for Charles Boyer, so I would say the Englishman is coming up in his screen life. . . . Sheila O'Sullivan, younger sister of Maureen, has been signed to an acting contract by Metro, where she will probably take over her sister's part in the Tarzan pictures.

Quick Change Outfit

By Lillian Mae

A good mixer—this very youthful, built-for-action dress designed by Lillian Mae. Pattern 4170 flits merrily through sunny days, lurching on the country club, wandering and going on shopping sprees just as smartly as it swings a golf club or a tennis racket. You'll appreciate the short-cut directions of the illustrated Sewing Instructor when you make the action-free, two-paneled skirt—the wide, shoulder straps—and the cool square neck that forms a low sun-tan back. Have the dashing bolero jacket in the same color, or perhaps in some startling contrast. Why not try this dress in the de-lightfully cool new rayon shark-skin? Or use crisp pique.

Pattern 4170 is available in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16, dress, takes 3 1/8 yards 39-inch fabric; bolero, 1 yard contrast. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coin for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

East, west, north, south—wherever your vacationland lies you'll have fun in wearing the sun if you bring along gay new costumes for every occasion. So hurry—order Lillian Mae's Summer Pattern Book today! Packed with bright, quickly sewn styles for sporting, sunning, dancing, traveling, sight-seeing and just staying at home. Frost Gray and Lime Green Prevail In Color Scheme of Irby Residence

By Sally Forth.

WHILE the city swelters under a relentless summer sun, Sally searches for cooling subjects with which to refresh her readers. A subject was found in the charming home of Alton and Elizabeth Hopkins Irby, where shades of frost gray and lime green produce that exhilarating sensation usually confined to mountaintops.

The home of stately colonial design is fashioned of white stucco, and is located on Conway road near the residence of Elizabeth's parents, the Charles C. Hopkinses.

Adjoining the frost-gray hall, which is complemented by a lime-green rug, is the living room, featuring the same restful colors. Here a coral damask sofa introduces a third harmonious color accent. A solid green chair and a chubbier green-striped chair complete the furniture arrangement, and the windows are adorned with curtains, with the yellow, green and white shades predominating.

Upon entering the living room Sally's eye focused upon the handsome Audubon print overhanging the mantel. The sketch depicts a crow perched upon a branch of a walnut tree, the colors carrying out the newyew's artistic color scheme.

The dining room is papered in a jewel-tone shade, and printed with ethereal sketches of beige and brown bamboo. Handsome Chinese Chippendale furniture, upholstered in burgundy and beige hues, is arranged in the room and heavy beige curtains outline the windows.

The gray walls in the bedroom adopt a faint bluish cast and feature a white palm frond design. Peach-colored corduroy spreads "dress up" the twin beds, and the curtains are fashioned of cool white voile.

Sally admired the kitchen, which resembles a checkerboard with its red, black and white color motif and chic metal Venetian blinds.

AMONG popular Atlantans departing for the summer season is Mrs. Arthur Moore, who leaves today for an extended trip to North Carolina and Virginia.

Mrs. Moore's first stop will be Shelby, N. C., where she will visit her niece, Mrs. J. O. Mixon, at her charming home there.

The Atlanta travel enthusiast will then journey to Norfolk, Va., to spend several weeks with her close friend, Miss Emily Dick. Upon completion of her enjoyable visit in Norfolk, Mrs. Moore, accompanied by her hostess, will motor to the former's newly completed cottage on Virginia Beach, where they will revel in the tranquil sunlit days and ocean breezes prevailing there.

Mrs. Moore is still undecided regarding whether or not she and Miss Dick will embark on a boat trip to New York to attend the World's Fair. Sally suspects, however, that the duo will find the boat trip a temptation hard to resist.

IT'S no rumor—it's a fact! One of the most attractive members of Atlanta's Debutante Club of last season is betrothed to a popular graduate of the University of Georgia, and the marriage will be solemnized in the early fall.

The bride-elect is an alumna of the Pi Pi sorority and made her debut at a brilliant tea-dance here. The groom-elect is a member of the S. A. E. fraternity.

A sparkling diamond engagement ring seals the betrothal scheduled for announcement in the early autumn.

Surely you can identify the pair! Sally dares not give you another hint.

BRIDES-ELECT and their many activities are filling the social calendar these days, and each day the pretty brides-to-be are opening exciting-looking presents which will form an important part of their future homes. Righton Magid, whose engagement was announced recently to Charles Goldwell and whose marriage takes place on June 24, received her first piece of silver yesterday. The gift bears special significance, as it is a present from a cousin of the bride-elect, Mrs. Edward S. Elliott, of Savannah. The piece is a handsome silver tray in the beautiful Repousse pattern.

MIAMI, Fla., June 11.—Miss Elizabeth Jane Holcomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edgar Holcomb, formerly of Atlanta, became the bride of James Walton Wilson, of Brunswick, son of Mrs. Arabella Wright Wilson, this afternoon at 6 o'clock at the home of her parents, Dr. Homer MacMillan, of Atlanta, performed the ceremony in the presence of members of the immediate families.

Many Social Affairs Will Mark 54th Annual Tennis Tournament

Tennis players from all over the south will be extensively entertained by Atlanta society during the 54th annual southern tennis tournament which opened Saturday, R. S. Fleet, tournament referee, announced this week.

Entertainment opens this evening with a party at the Atlanta Athletic Club which will feature a showing of the national tennis finals of 1938. Tomorrow evening the players will be feted at a dance at the Piedmont Driving Club and on Wednesday evening all visitors will be entertained at a theater party at the Fox Night.

Nicholson received a blue ribbon for fine specimens. Other winners included Mesdames Keith Conway and Thomas B. Robertson, Mrs. C. A. Move, honorary member, will give a six-month course on flower arrangements, beginning at the next meeting to be held in September.

Mrs. LeFebvre To Give Book Review Tuesday.

Mrs. George O. LeFebvre, chairman of the literary division of the Atlanta Woman's Club, gives a book review Tuesday at 11 o'clock on "Grapes of Wrath" by John Steinbeck, one of the most widely discussed books of recent months, and hailed by many as the long-awaited great American novel.

This is the first of a series of book reviews to be given by the club, complimentary to the members. Others interested in the current books which are to be reviewed are invited to attend for a nominal fee.

During the summer the clubrooms, grounds and swimming pool and catering department will be open during the early evenings and Saturday and Sunday afternoons for the members. Mrs. Sam Neely is acting hostess for a few weeks. Mrs. Neely is a former member having served as chairman of international relations and vice president of the literary division during the administrations of Mrs. B. M. Boykin and Mrs. Norman Sharp.

Richardson Class Plans Barbecue.

Alonso Richardson Bible class of St. Mark's Methodist church will give a barbecue on Tuesday evening, June 13, at 6:30 o'clock at Lakemoore.

Friends and members of the Warner Hill Bible class are invited to attend the affair.

Mrs. G. B. Ivey has charge of transportation. Motor cars will leave St. Mark's church, Peachtree corner and Fifth street, at 6 o'clock. Reservations can be made through Mrs. L. B. Sewell, 907 Piedmont avenue.

Mrs. Alonso Richardson is teacher of the class and Mrs. Virginia Bolden is president of the group.

Mann-Thornburg.

The marriage of Miss Doris Mann to William Thornburg took place June 4 at the home of Rev. A. C. Peacock in Sylvan Hills.

The bride wore light blue crepe fashioned with cape and full skirt, worn with leghorn hat and white accessories. Her flowers were sweetheart roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Thornburg is the daughter of Mrs. C. A. Mann, of Hapeville. Mr. Thornburg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Thornburg, of Moultrie. The couple will reside at 1405 Graham street, Capitol View.

Williams-Barrett.

STAPLETON, Ga., June 11.—Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Williams announce the marriage of their daughter, Sara Louise, to John R. Barrett, of Demorest. The marriage was solemnized June 5.

11:30—Kay Kyser's Orchestra, WGST.
11:30—Earl Hines' Orchestra, WSB.

TUNE-UP TIME—An eccentric class of not-too-earnest graduates will receive diplomas from the hand of Walter O'Keefe on the "Tune-Up Time" broadcast to be heard over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight. The graduates, of course, will be the O'Keefe class of dizzy stooges; the diplomas, certificates of incompetency.

Maestro Kostelanetz will support Walter's efforts with an especially ray orchestral program. The program includes:
"Diane."
"Moon Love."
"Tambourin Chinois."
"Night Must Fall."
"Victory March" for Michigan.
"Dear Old Duke" for Duke University.
Cornell's "By Cayuga's Waters."
"UCLA" for the University of California at Los Angeles.
"Tale of the Boala."
"Count of Luxembourg," by Lehár.
"Gandemonium."
"If I Didn't Care."
"Moonlight Madonna."

CONCERT—So many requests have been received by Margaret Speaks, prima donna of the Monday Concert, for Johann Strauss' beautiful composition in three-quarter time, "Tales From the Vienna Woods," since she last sang it on the air that the number will be repeated on the program to be heard over WSB at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Miss Speaks will be assisted by the 70-piece symphony orchestra conducted by Alfred Wallenstein. The program includes:
"Fata Morgana" by Tausig.
"Night and the Curtains Drawn" by Ferrata.
"The Arabian Dance in A Major," by Grieg.
"Tales From the Vienna Woods," by Strauss.
"Poor Butterfly," by Huppel.
"Singing Beauty Waltz," by Tschakovsky.
"Thine Alone," from "Ellen," by Herbert.

THEATER—Fay Bainter, Lewis Stone and Jackie Cooper will play leading roles in the Radio Theater's adaptation of Lloyd C. Douglas' "White Banners" during the program to be heard over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight.

Miss Bainter takes the part of Hannah Parmalee with Jackie Cooper as young Peter Trimble, which were the same characterizations they did in the movie version. Veteran Actor Lewis Stone, currently appearing in the successful Hardy movie series, will enact the role of Paul Ward.

CONTENTED HOUR—A mythical visit to Finland will be paid by members of the Contented program during the "International nights" feature of the broadcast to be heard over WSB at 9 o'clock tonight.

Featured artists on the half-hour show include Opal Craven, the Lullaby Lady, the Continentals Quartet and Marek Weber's orchestra. Program music includes:
"Mina Seison Korkealla Vuorella," Finnish folk song.
"Honkain Kesällä Mokinä Seiso," Finnish folk song.
"Prelude," by Jarnfelt.
"Finnish Lullaby," by Palmgren.
"Kessallalla," traditional.
"Nelsonen Sinulle Laulan," traditional.
"Evening," by Palmgren.
"Berceuse," by Jarnfelt.
"Finlandia," by Sibelius.

MY LOVE IS WAITING

Dorian and Miles Miss the Ship, While Sightseeing In Genoa

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
When Dorian Lane inherits a thousand dollars, her mother, resentful because Parkton, Virginia, society has not taken her up, urges her to make a Mediterranean cruise and so meet the right people. Dorian, employed in a local bank, does not share her mother's ambitions. Many friends see her off, including Tommy Saunders whom she likes but does not love. As she boards the liner Miles Kennedy and Bart Waring are attracted by her beauty. Miles is just out of college and his father insisted he make a European tour before taking over his dwindling shoe factory business in Boston. Bart is consciously handsome. Since Fern Elliott jilted him in Baltimore ten years before for wealthy James Marshall, he has succeeded in business in New York and is now a millionaire. Dorian's cabin mate is pretty blonde Patricia West, who she could meet and marry a rich man. She meets Robert Maxwell, Bart is amazed when he sees Fern and casually forgotten a succession of girls who fell in love with him. INSTALLMENT X.
"Only for a little. Shepherds get tired. He prefers the ship, especially the swimming pool. He's having his nap now." Then she said, "Dorian went ashore with Miles."

"I stayed in Cannes. I flew over at noon."
"Yes, I know. Won't you sit down?" Then after a moment, "Bart, does it make you uncomfortable to be with me?" And after another pause, "Do you still hate me so much? It's been so long ago I probably shouldn't mention it and we should go on acting as if we've just met. But we parted in such dreadful hate and anger." And tears, so many tears.

He turned his head and smiled at her. "I've quite forgiven you for breaking my heart at 21."

"Thank you. I'm glad." She looked at the face she had remembered for 10 years and said, "I saw Dorian and Miles leave the ship this morning, together. He's very deeply in love with her and she would be with him, if she were not facing her youth."

Bart's eyes narrowed. "You don't approve of Dorian and me?"
"No. A girl who is eager to live and a man 10 years older who has lived. The scale would never balance."

His voice was sharp. "Then we shall try to make it balance. I'm going to ask her marry me before the cruise is over. Why should you care?"
Her cheeks burned. "I'm interested in that boy and girl. You're in a pattern where you don't belong."

He could have said so much about a pattern for living 10 years ago but he said nothing and arose and left her. In a few minutes his anger subsided and he loathed himself for speaking sharply to her, for bringing the color rushing to her face.

Fern blinked warm tears. Were they to be enemies always? Were they, because the truth would never be spoken.

Dorian and Miles were having another gay day. They had viewed with proper awe Genoa's places of historical interest. They had shopped, Dorian buying bracelets for herself and friends at home, Miles buying pipes. They had come into the cold March sunlight and walked until they found themselves in the poor section of the city where Miles took pictures of Dorian surrounded by dark-eyed Italian children. Thinking of lunch, they stopped at a small restaurant and ordered spaghetti.

Sitting at a small table in a small restaurant and listening to that beautiful language she could not understand, she felt very happy. And there was music, soft, sweet music, and Miles looking with excited eyes at the strange faces around him.

She said simply, "I'm very happy, Miles."

He forgot the other faces when he looked at her. "So am I." When I'm with you—no matter what comes after. Then he said, "You're not doing very well by your spaghetti. It's a sacrifice to leave any on your plate." "Then I must commit a sacrilege."

When they came out of the restaurant he said, "It's three o'clock. If you want to get back to the ship, I'll get a taxi for you. But I think I'll poke around until sailing time."

Smiling, she looked up from under the brim of the dark hat and said, "Then I'll poke with you. Let's get a horse and carriage and find a park."

It was cool and shady and quiet in the park. They talked and laughed. He looked at his watch. "It's getting near the deadline. We'd better get a taxi." But the old driver of the carriage could not understand when Miles told him to hurry. Moreover, the late afternoon traffic was heavy and it seemed an incredibly long time before they reached the center of town.

"Miles, we've only eight minutes to get to the ship!"

They ran for a taxi. Traffic was snarled on a street that was being repaired. Bolting from the taxi, they ran to the pier. But the Napoli had left three minutes ago.

Breathless from excitement and from running, Dorian and Miles stood on the pier and watched the cruise ship gliding gracefully out to sea.

Miles turned to two Italian officers standing near by. "Can't we get a launch? Isn't there some way to get us out? Wouldn't they..."

But one officer shook his head. "They would not stop for you."

Suddenly Miles began to laugh. Turning to Dorian, he asked, "Have you any money?"

"I've all my money with me." "Good." He smiled down on her. "I've about five dollars with me. Well, here we are stranded in Genoa."

"What are we going to do?"

"Not lose our sense of humor or adventure," Miles said. "The American Express can do for us. We'll go down to Rome by train and then on to Naples to get the ship. That's all we can do."

And Bart was on the Napoli waiting for her. Miles put his arm through hers, a friendly, protective gesture, and they came out into the street again.

"How far is Rome, Miles?" "If I remember my travel books correctly, it's about 100 hours from here. We'll probably get a sleeper."

She stood still and the corners of her mouth turned up. "And I haven't a toothbrush."

He laughed. "A toothbrush? I've neither money nor a razor!" Then he said, "Our friends on the ship will guess what happened. They'll know we haven't eloped."

At the American Express office Dorian sat on a bench while Miles talked about time and train schedules. It took an unbelievably long time. When finally they came out into the twilight, he told her that they would get a 10 o'clock train and arrive in Rome the next morning and that since the passengers on the Napoli were coming from Naples to Rome, they would meet there. Feeling immensely relieved, they stopped at a sidewalk cafe while Miles had an aperitif and watched people pass.

It occurred to him then that perhaps she was thinking he had planned for them to miss the ship in order to keep her to himself. But he quickly dismissed that, realizing that a young man would scarcely plan to be stranded with a girl in a foreign city with only five dollars in his wallet and no way of knowing that she had money with her. But would Bart Waring believe that? Would the other passengers? There was bound to be gossip.

As if reading his thoughts, Dorian said, "I suppose I'll be talked about." But she was smiling. "I'm not in the least frightened now. It's an adventure. But I had a couple of terrible minutes watching the ship and all my possessions leaving me."

"And Bart?"

"Yes... and Bart." Her heart turned over. "But I'm sure he'll understand we didn't plan to do it. You offered to send me back early in the afternoon and I wouldn't go. I was having too much fun."

But suppose Bart didn't understand! Suppose he were angry! Suppose he believed...

Miles said, "I've an idea. Let's have a progressive dinner. Then we can take in several places. We'll finish with coffee and cheese somewhere near the station because we're going to be at the station half an hour before our train leaves."

It was to be another gay evening. Ever after she remembered the places she went with Miles that evening, the music they heard and danced to, and the things about which they talked and laughed. If unconsciously she had offended him in the past, the barriers he had put between them were torn down.

Looking at him across a table in a small place where they had come for cheese and coffee, she said, "You're such a wonderful companion, Miles."

"You're pretty swell yourself." "You haven't once tried to make love to me."

An electric moment passed before he said, "Not that I haven't thought about it." Looking at her directly, trying to make his voice casual and flippant, he said, "Shall I begin making love to you now, Dorian?"

When he put his hand over hers and held it tightly, she was conscious for the first time of the warmth and vitality of his hands.

Gravely she looked at him. "Miles, if I were not so much in love with Bart, if I were not certain I loved him completely, I'd want you to begin making love to me—right now."

He held her hand more tightly. "You're sure you know your own mind about that?"

"I know my heart. He walked away with it almost the first moment I saw him."

On the train outside her compartment he said a hasty good night and left her.

Gabler, Luman Harris Win Pair for Crackers, 4-1, 2-1

Bobbitt, McKee First Seeded Netmen To Gain Second Round

GRANT TO PLAY CLEVER MORRIS IN TEST TODAY

Heavy Schedule on Four Courts Gets Under Way at 10 A. M.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Russell Bobbitt, No. 5, and McKee's Dick McKee, No. 12, yesterday became the first seeded players to enter the second round of the 54th annual southern tennis tournament at the Northside club.

Bobbitt advanced quite easily with a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Joe Exum, of Moultrie, but McKee had a tough time with Judd Fowler, of Atlanta, but finally won out, 8-6, 6-4.

A packed and jammed schedule was prepared for today by Bill Luffler, amiable pro at the Piedmont Driving Club. Matches will start at 10 o'clock this morning.

All starting times listed for today's southern tournament matches are tentative. Accurate times may be had by calling Bill Luffler at Jackson 4140 and it is important that all players call before 10 o'clock this morning.

and will continue until dark at the Northside club, Tech, the Atlanta Tennis Club and the Piedmont Driving Club.

Players are requested to come by the Northside courts before starting any matches to get balls. Although first and second-round matches are scheduled today, several of them would do justice to the finals of an average tournament.

PERO-SCHWARTZMAN.
Chief among the features is George Pero's expected battle with Melvin Schwartzman, a fine indoor player from New York. Pero is seeded eighth.

Another match of much interest is Top-seeded Betsy Grant's affair with Dick Morris, of Winter Park, Fla. Morris is a member of the Rice Institute team and advanced to the semi-finals of the Georgia state tournament last year.

The Kells Bolland-Harris Everett match scheduled yesterday was postponed and will be played today.

Bill Hardie, No. 11, of Miami, faces D. L. York, of Atlanta, at 11 o'clock this morning. Second-ranked Gardner Mulloy will be opposed by Walter Ayers, I. S. U. star, at 2 o'clock. Martin Buxby, of Miami, No. 7, faces Haywood Belser, of Columbia, an hour later.

Third-seeded Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, meets Atlanta's Parker Stillwell at 6 o'clock.

AT NORTHSIDE.
All of these matches are scheduled at the Northside Tennis Club.

Other seeded players will battle it out on the Georgia Tech courts. Carlton Road, No. 6, of Brooklyn, faces John Doyle, of Atlanta, at 10 this morning. Joe Davis, of Nashville, No. 14, meets Marvin Smith, of Atlanta, at 11 o'clock. Billy Gillespie, of Atlanta, No. 13, will be opposed by George Parks, of Miami, at 1 o'clock, and Tenth-ranked Burtz Boulware will play Milton Luckey, of Augusta, at 5 o'clock.

Play in the women's singles will be at the Driving Club. One match yesterday saw Peggy Smith defeat Mrs. S. Ingram, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1.

Other results of yesterday included Malon Courts' 6-0, 6-3 victory over Glenn McConnell, Woody Bonner, of Mississippi State, and Bud Hart, of Miami, advanced with defaults.

AT ATLANTA WIN.
Hank Crawford, of Atlanta, conquered Clark Clark, of Miami, 6-4, 6-4. Glenn Dudley, of Atlanta, whipped Howard Barrett, of Atlanta, 6-1, 6-1. Ed Van Winkle, Atlanta, beat Weldon Seleskey, Atlanta, 6-4, 6-4. Charlie Matti, Atlanta, played a great overhead game in ousting Atlanta's Cortez Suttles, 6-1, 6-1. Matti was from Miami. It was the first second-round match to be played.

Pierre Howard, of Decatur, defeated D. W. Gentry, of Atlanta, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3, and Louis Brownstein, of Miami, conquered Cody Laird, of Atlanta, 6-3, 6-1.

David Jones beat Malcolm Manley, 7-5, 7-5, and Reg Fleet beat Nat Collins, 6-3, 6-3. All four are from Atlanta.

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

It is interesting to speculate on what sort of average the habitual .270 hitter of today would have if the ball suddenly were derabitized. That is to say, if the life were taken out of it.

Here's the idea: Tommy Leach, Boston Braves scout, who knows the background from experience, recalls the difference the rabbit ball made in the case of at least two hitters.

For instance, Scoops Carey went to the Pittsburgh club as a confirmed .260 or .270 hitter. And then, along about 1919 or '20, the lively ball was introduced. Carey immediately became a steady .300 hitter. Rabbit Maranville was the same way. His average leaped with the advent of the lively ball.

Leach argues that it made a tremendous difference to a great deal more hitters but points out that there is one flaw in his argument.

"Ty Cobb hit the same with either ball. That can be used to argue that I am wrong, but so far as I know Cobb is the only one who didn't notice any difference. And he was, of course, exceptional," Leach declared.

It seems interesting to ponder the difference because a chance may be offered to find out once again. President Will Harridge, of the American league, is in favor of a return to the dead ball.

His idea may be that it would reduce some of the potency of the front-running Yankees. It might do that and work the same right down the line and leave the Yankees as indomitable as ever, but that's neither here nor there.

If the dead ball comes back into baseball, averages in eight out of 10 cases probably will take a decided drop. And the spirits of 10 out of every 10 pitchers will soar. They blame the lively ball on all the arm troubles of today, pointing out it is necessary to bear down on every pitch. They even have to bear down on rival pitchers.

WHAT MAKES A BIG LEAGUER?

There is some question as to what are the qualifications of a big leaguer. The case of Emil Mailho is one to consider. Mailho can do everything well. He has a strong, accurate arm; he is a steady, dependable hitter, and is, by all odds, a fine base runner.

Mailho was given a rather short trial by the Philadelphia Athletics and then the Crackers got him. He has been down here ever since. Emil, a perennial peeper-box, is having his best year with the Crackers. He is hitting over .400 and is leading his mates in virtually all departments except pitching. He can cook, too. I have Mrs. Mailho's word for that.

Now, Connie Mack certainly has gone along with lots worse outfielders than Emil Mailho. So there is some question as to what really does make a big leaguer. The breaks probably figure in very strongly.

As far as breaks are concerned, you could point out Jack Bolling. Montreal wanted him badly. When Gene Hasson was knocked out of a season's play by a bean ball, it left the Royals without a first baseman.

The Royals were as much up against it as Doc Prothro. And Bolling's big break came when Prothro had a pitcher to offer in the deal. Montreal didn't have one acceptable to the Crackers.

As far as Mailho is concerned, it's a break for the Crackers that he didn't fill the big league bill in the astute eyes of Connie Mack.

But everyone is entitled to a mistake and it may not be too late yet to rectify the one made on Mailho. The little Frenchman has all the qualifications. Size doesn't count when you can run, throw and hit, as he can.

RICHARDS PRAISES GABLER.

"I'll declare if he (Gabler) doesn't look better than he did when he was with the Giants in 1934," Manager Paul Richards said after the noted resident of Death Valley (Cal.) had galloped home with a victory in the first game of the Nashville double-header.

"He has a lot of zing on his fast ball, a fine change-up, a dandy curve ball and, withal, he has excellent control. I candidly believe he looks better than he did when he was with the Giants."

"We have a pretty good pitching staff now and don't need much more to be a serious contender for the pennant all the way. Lester Burge will be here Monday to play first base against Knoxville. He's welcome to first base. I'm sore all over."

Paul has filled in very creditably at first for the past three games. He was particularly good yesterday. He didn't make a mistake or an error in either game.

Ferdinand's Corner: And so truth once again is stranger than fiction. . . . Hollywood would reject any such plot as too fantastic. . . . That is, the story of the minor league first baseman traded to the big leagues, playing a game one night and flying early that morning to join his new club and then coming through that afternoon with the hit in the ninth inning to win the game. . . . Frank Merriwell was a piker. . . . Jack Bolling is as good as he wants to be. . . . The Phils forever after will regard the slender first baseman as a luck piece. . . . It was the first double-header the Phils had won since Hannibal crossed the Alps. . . . Going into the series with the second-place Cardinals, the Phils were behind their won and lost record of last year. . . . Now they're only behind in losses. . . . The Crackers weren't arguing Friday night whether Young Gilbert's swat on the line was fair or foul. . . . They insisted it went out of sight in the corner of the field and that it should have been called a double. . . . Instead of a triple that was allowed. . . . That explains to some who wondered about it why Umpire Hall walked up the base line. . . . Americus Polli made his swan song a grand opera piece for the Lookouts. . . . The league-leading hurler allowed only eight hits as Chattanooga defeated Knoxville. . . . It was Polli's eighth victory. . . . Joe Engel probably offered Crip the grandstand and an autographed picture of himself to change his mind about returning to Vermont to look after his business. . . . When the observation was made here in the spring that Lou Gehrig did not look at all well and seemed to flinch from pitches, some scoffed. . . . Now Gehrig, thin and wan, is going to a clinic to find out what's wrong with him. . . . A great playing career very likely has ended. . . . Twice this season the Memphis Chicks have gone off on 11-game winning streaks. . . . The current one was stopped yesterday. . . . That's the team, incidentally, Paul Richards said would be the one to beat in the Southern league flag race. . . . Remember? . . . Charley Dannels, who won the recent Atlanta open, is playing in the Southern this week at Nashville. . . . He will write entertaining pieces for The Constitution. . . . Unfailing harbinger of rain: Any Atlanta tennis tournament. . . . No sooner had Larry Gilbert reiterated that George Joffcoat is a good pitcher than Joffcoat bore him out with a six-hit performance. . . . Quit popping off, Larry!

JUNIOR GOLFERS QUALIFY TODAY AT ANSLEY PARK

Branch, '38 Champ, Out; Gene Dahlbender Looms as Chief Threat.

By ROY WHITE.
Atlanta's junior golfers will qualify at 18 holes this morning on the Ansley Park course in the annual city Junior Championship tournament. Today's preliminary round will start at 9 o'clock and no entries will be received after 11 o'clock when the last of the qualifiers will tee off.

Weldon Branch, the 1938 winner, will not defend his crown, having passed the junior age limit. Alan Yates, Billy Cayce, and Luke Barnes are others who have passed the junior class into the senior competition.

NO ENTRY FEE.
Replacing the former stars, young Gene Dahlbender appears in the role of the favorite. He has played in 30 tournaments and has never won a championship and this being his last chance in the junior class, he has been pointing to this week's play in particular.

There is no entry fee and every young golfer in the city is eligible and invited to participate, regardless of club affiliation. The Atlanta Golf association is sponsoring the tournament, as in past years, as a courtesy to the youngsters and an attractive group of trophies and prizes have been purchased. These trophies will be on display at Ansley Park for the winners and runners up in each flight.

The age limit for the junior class is set by the United States Golf association at 16 years five months and 29 days and any player not having passed these limits is welcome to enter.

MATCH PLAY TUESDAY.
Every club, both private and municipal, in the city, has some six or eight youngsters who will enter tournament competition for the first time this week.

Match play will start Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock and all matches during the remainder of the week will be played in the mornings.

The number to be placed in each flight will be determined by the total entry list, and should the flights be large enough, the defeated players in the first round will form consolation flights.

THE PAIRINGS.
9:00—Gene Dahlbender Jr. and George Berry.
9:05—T. M. Smith and Bob Masden.
9:10—W. E. Nelson and Bruce Chapman.
9:15—Jim McLemore and Wallace Cochran.
9:20—Red Wynn and Earl McCollum.
9:25—B. McLemore and Stewart Copeland.
9:30—Bill Rustin and George Wilson.
9:35—Jack Copeland and George Pendley.
9:40—James Starr and Henry Powell.
9:45—Horris Copeland.

White Golfers Lead In Municipal Play.
John A. White's golfers, defending their 1938 city championship, took the lead Sunday in the last round of the first half of the city municipal schedule with a 13-12-10-12-1 victory over the James L. Key team. The match was played on the John White course.

Bobby Jones defeated Black Rock, 12 to 6, on the Bobby Jones course, and Candler Park broke into the win column for the first time with an 8-to-2 decision over Piedmont Park on the Candler course.

Victory for John White and defeat for Black Rock and James Key left White in the lead with four wins and one loss, while Black Rock and Key share second place with three victories and two defeats each.

Playing his best golf of the season thus far, the Jones team beat Black Rock 12 to 6. The winning team consisted of Buddy Hanahan, Ted Huff, Bacon Hale, Lewis McClurkin, Lewis Smith, Lee McClure and W. P. Lee.

Black Rock's team consisted of Luke Barnes, Charlie Ozmer, Gerard Allen, Emmett Morris, Tip Schier, Ed Lovett and Jim Davis.

Due to threatening weather the Candler and Piedmont Park teams agreed to play only three players on each team. Russell Bridges, Jack Hale and H. C. Brooks made up the winning combination, while Weldon Johnson, Ralph Forrester, and Ben Gonzales represented Piedmont Park.

Members of the John White team were Cotton Adcock, Pete Tate, W. B. Whately, C. W. Bone, Jesse Robbins, H. N. Purdy and Bill Calley. Those on the losing Key team were Max Smith, Johnny Skinner, George Clayton, Charlie Barnes, B. Rice, G. Puckett and Tony Collins.

'YOU DON'T HAVE TO WIN TO BE HERO, CHARLIE'

Scores of Atlantans greeted Charlie Yates upon his return to Atlanta yesterday from an unsuccessful defense of the British amateur golf title he won in 1938. First to greet the smiling youngster were

NASHVILLE ASKS YATES TO PLAY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 11.—(P)—Gray and grizzled but still getting around without aid, S. G. Bush, of New Orleans, checked in today at Belle Meade Country Club for his 28th southern amateur golf tournament.

Bush, who made his first title bid in 1906 and succeeded in wresting the crown 10 years later, has the pepper of the teen-age entrants and he'll be giving his all when the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds begins Tuesday.

However, he nominates a fellow townsman, Paul Leslie, and defending Champion Carl Dann Jr., of Orlando, Fla., as the most likely contenders to capture the 37th renewal while he hopes his son, George, makes a good showing.

Warm-up rounds under today's wind-tempered sunshine failed to excite onlookers although Mack Brothers, at home at beautiful Belle Meade, posted a 68 to lead the way.

Although club officials expressed hope of persuading Atlanta's Charlie Yates, who just returned from an unsuccessful defense of his British amateur title, to make an appearance, his brother, Dan, said it was unlikely.

Charlie, who passed up the Southern last year because of his English visit, was runner-up to Haas in 1937.

"If I were Charlie," said his brother, "I'd stay home. He hasn't had any practice since he left over there and this course takes practice. I know I didn't do any good out there today."

NO SPECIAL PLANS.
The young Atlanta has no special plans for the summer. He will, of course, enter the national amateur in September. But right now he's interested in getting back to work and again getting acquainted with his family.

Among those who were at the Terminal station to meet the returning Yates were: Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Yates, Alan Yates, Frances Yates, Thomas Paine, James D. Robinson, Arch Avery, John K. Otley Jr., John Ridley, George Clayton, Bill Harris, Henry Green, John Brice, Mr. and Mrs. Fay Mewborn, L. R. Hunter and others.

Social note: Miss Shep Davis was there too.

AMERICA KEEPS HONORS AT POLO
WESTBURY, N. Y., June 11.—(P)—A great display of teamwork carried the United States' hard-riding polo quartet to its second straight victory over Great Britain in the international trophy on Meadowbrook's international field today.

While Tommy Hitchcock and Mike Phipps led the scoring, this was primarily a team triumph as the Americans pulled away in the last three chukkers to win, 9 to 4.

Charlie Yates Greeted By Hometown Admirers

Atlanta Golfer Has No Immediate Plans—Eager To Get Back to Work.

By ERNEST HARWELL.

Charlie Yates came home yesterday. The tow-headed young Atlanta banker returned from the British amateur after he had traveled almost 10,000 miles to play three rounds of golf.

This time the mayor and all the city officials weren't there. There was to be no parade, all because Charlie wasn't carrying the British amateur cup.

But the same Charlie Yates stepped off the train to greet his family and those friends who turned out to welcome him home. He had a word for all, from the small children of Mr. and Mrs. Fay Mewborn to the nattily dressed James D. Robinson, president of the First National Bank. "I see you've bought a new coat since I left," he jested the bank official.

Only the absence of Danny kept the Yates family from boasting 100 per cent attendance. The second Yates boy is in Nashville pruning his game for the southern. First question Charlie popped to the home folks was why Alan didn't enter the southern meet.

Saturday Yates dropped over to the Spring Mill golf course at Philadelphia to watch a bit of the national open. He wasn't, however, thinking much about golf yesterday.

SMALL FINISHES SECOND CONTEST IN GREAT STYLE

Atlanta Club Replaces Knoxville in 3d Place in Standing.

By JACK TROY.

The Crackers combined excellent pitching with clutch hitting to win both ends of a double-header from the Nashville Vols, 4 to 1 and 2 to 1, and take the series, three games to one. The twin victory elevated Atlanta to third place ahead of Knoxville.

Despite early afternoon rain, a crowd of 6,859 gathered at Ponce de Leon to see Frank (The Great Gabbo) Gabler turn in a five-hit performance in the first game.

Lester Burge will report from Savannah today and will be at first base when the Crackers square off with the stalling Snokles tonight at Ponce de Leon.

Burge will relieve Manager Paul Richards, who probably will take a couple of days' rest and leave young Larry Smith back of the plate. Smith has been doing very well indeed.

and Luman Harris, who was relieved by Smoll in the seventh, allow only four hits in the second game.

Gabler, who had excellent control, had a shutout until the ninth. He walked a couple of men then and seemed on the verge of going out. But the crowd beseeched Manager Paul Richards to leave him in there. Richards hadn't

U. S. INCOME DROPS

TO $64,000,000,000

11 Per Cent Decline From Figure Attained in '37; Production Prices Cut.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP) After rising steadily for five years the national income of the United States declined to $64,000,000,000 in 1938, a drop of 11 per cent from the $72,000,000,000 figure attained in 1937.
